Passengers Taken Off River Steamboat Rammed in Fog

Washington Irving of Hudson Day Line, Biggest Craft of Kind, Goes Down in North River.

Veteran Captain Quiets a Panic

Officers Form Human Chain to Lower Men, Women and Children Over the Side to Waiting Tugs.

The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Rammed ships by a steel barge loaded

700 tons of oil, the $1,000,000

steamship Washington

ing of the Hudson River Day sank in the North River today

all of the 200 passengers and crew of 150 had been transferred to other boats.

The Washington Irving, a steel wheeler, said to be the largest passenger boat in the world, just left its pier on its daily

trip to Albany when the crash occurred and water began rushing through a great hole on the port side.

Capt. D. H. Deming headed for Jersey shore and serious panic erupted as music from the band of women and the shouts men. The Captain has been with the ship nearly 50 years.

The crew circulated among the passengers distributing life preservers

as the boat was launched and stricken boats' whistle sounded distress signal.

Boats 100 Feet From Shore.

The boat sank within 100 feet of Jersey shore after the last occident had left.

There were no serious injuries

though many complained of bruises and many relatives separated in the confusion.

Mrs. Addie Sargent of Garland,

Mo., one of the passengers, described the accident. She said that the Washington Irving nosed stream there was a collision which ripped a large hole below

the waterline. The passengers led for life preservers and were prevented from leaping overboard by the coolness of Captain, she said. The captain immediately organized his own rescue squads, detailing men to fetch life preservers for passengers, others to quiet

those who were panic-stricken and others to sound a distress signal. A number of river tugs immediately sped toward the sinking ship.

The Captain then directed that

Washington Irving's lifeboats

be swung out and the passengers be transferred to the tugs and be taken to various points along the front on the New York

side.

SAYS HIS FRANK WAS USED TO AID BROOKHART CAMPAIGN

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania Charges Abuse of Free Mailing Privilege.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The preparation for the primary election in Iowa on June 7, caused a rumpus in the Senate today when Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, charged the Brookhart

Campaign Committee was violating the franking privilege of members of Congress in using the mails.

Former Senator Smith, W.

Brookhart, who lost his seat in the recent contest brought by Daniel

F. Steck (Dem.), is opposing Senator Cummings for the Republican Senatorial nomination in Iowa.

Reed exhibited an envelope franked under his name and containing a copy of a speech he had made in the Senate April 8 on the Brookhart-Steck election contest.

He read affidavits that the same envelope had contained also a four-page circular headed "Brook-hart's Voice Is the Voice of Iowa," and signed by the Brookhart Campaign Committee at Des Moines. The inclusion of the circular, he said, violated the postal laws.

Several weeks ago, the Pennsylvania Senator said, that at the request of Senator La Follette

(Rep.), Wisconsin, he had granted permission to frank under his signature copies of the April speech made between 25,000 and 30,000 copies had been sent to Iowa in that manner.

La Follette corroborated Reed's version of the request for the use of the frank, but added that "Judgment should be suspended as to whether Brookhart or his campaign committee had abused the privilege."

FORMER ST. LOUIS WOMAN CHIEF HEIR TO $50,000,000

Estate That of William Edenborn, Who Came Here Penniless in 1870 Moved to Louisiana.

HE DIED RECENTLY AT 78 LEAVING NO WILL

Notice He Was Intestate Filed at Shreveport Expected to Bring Order Placing Widow in Charge

By the Associated Press.

A $50,000,000 estate, but no will disposing of it, was left by William Edenborn, who came to St.

Louis in 1870 a penniless German immigrant, and died two weeks ago at Shreveport, La., at the age of 78

—an inventor, railroad magnate and capitalist, and Louisiana's richest citizen.

Notice that Mr. Edenborn had died intestate was filed in the Caddo District Court at Shreveport yesterday, and is expected to bring an order placing his widow, Mrs.

Sarah Drain Edenborn, formerly of St. Louis, in full control of the estate. Mrs. Edenborn had succeeded her husband, upon his death, May 14, as president of the Louisiana Railway and Navigation Co., which operates 700 miles of railroad between New Orleans, Shreveport and McKinney, Tex., and is valued at $25,000,000. She is past

70 years old.

Under the direction of the Court, strong boxes in the vaults of the Metropolitan Bank of New Orleans,

containing securities of Mr. Eden-born, have been opened and the contents are being inventoried. The inventory of real estate, railroad and manufacturing properties will take several months.

The Collateral Heirs.

Meanwhile, an attorney has been appointed to represent the Eden-born relatives, who are: Mrs. Lena Vigton, a niece, of Wheaton, Ill.;

Mrs. Mary Mann and Mrs. Emma

Logan, nieces, of Shreveport; August E. Mann of Lorona, Pa., and

E. O. Mann of Shreveport, nephews, and Paul Sipple, cousin, of Shreveport. There is no indication that Mrs. Edenborn's claim to the administration of the estate will be contested. The other heirs appear willing to abide by her decision as to the disposal of the fortune.

The estate was shared jointly by Mr. and Mrs. Edenborn, prior to his death, under the Louisiana community property law. It consists of the Louisiana Railway and Navigation Co., the Central Louisiana

Construction Co., holdings in the Pittsburg Southern Coal Co., St.

Louis Iron and Machine Works,

Metropolitan Bank of New Orleans,

American Musical Supply Co., and perhaps a score of other concerns of importance in Louisiana and other states.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The fire caused a tense moment of danger in the Brownsville and East New York Hospital, four blocks away.

In the operating room of the hospital Dr. Harry Loeb had just administered an anesthetic to Seymour Rorer, 16 months old.

Dr. Raphael Schillinger had made an incision behind the child's ear beginning the delicate mastoid operation. The lights went out. The room was in total darkness. Dr.

Schillinger withdrew his knife and

Dr. Loeb, Dr. Levinson and Miss

Alice Rorer, nurse, stood motion-

Miss Marie Licht, supervising nurse, hurried pocket flashlights to the room and by this comparatively dim light Dr. Schillinger completed the operation. At the hospital it was said the slightest inaccuracy in the operation probably would have caused an abscess of the brain and meningitis. But the operation was successful and Seymour is doing well.

close to the eaves of the burning

APPELLATE COURT REVERSES MIX FOR TALKING TOO MUCH

Commission Refers to Circuit Judge's Thrice Repeated Remark Vouching for Witness.

RAKED FOR STARTING AN ARGUMENT

Award of $1500 Against American Car and Foundry Co. Set Aside and New Trial Ordered.

Holding that Circuit Judge Mix had overstepped the province of a trial judge in commenting upon testimony, and had placed himself in the position of interviewing a witness, the St. Louis Court of Appeals today ordered a new trial of a damage suit tried before Judge Mix when he presided in a civil division at the Courthouse.

The case was that of Eddie Wair, a Negro, whom the jury awarded $1500 for personal injury. The defendant, the American Car and Foundry Co., appealed. The witness was Dr. E. B. Kinder, who frequently testified for plaintiffs in personal injury cases.

Dr. Kinder, at the original trial, was under cross-examination when he testified for defense, attempting to get before the jury his frequent appearances in court, asked, "If you come to court four or five times a day, do you make a charge in each case?" Plaintiff objected, whereupon Judge Mix said, "This Court would like to say I hope he would, I don't see where there is any more harm in doctors being paid than there is for a lawyer." Defense took exception to that remark, but Judge Mix repeated it twice.

Judge Polled the Jury. Later in the cross-examination counsel for defendant asked for discharge of the jury on the ground that an intervention of plaintiff's counsel had prejudiced the jury. Judge Mix, remarking that he would apply his "acid test," questioned each juror and accepted their own statements that they were not prejudiced.

"The conduct of cross-examination is largely entrusted to the trial judge," was the Appellate Court's opinion, written by Commissioner Walter E. Bennick, "but it is equally well established that in the exercise of such discretion he must refrain from comment upon the evidence and must avoid the appearance of vouching from the witness."

"It was the duty of the Court to rule and not to comment. In commenting, not once, but three times, on the doctor's right to charge, the action of the Court can be construed as nothing less than placing the stamp of judicial approval upon his Dr. Kinder's testimony."

"Although the question was improper, the decision goes on, 'much more grievous was the error when the Court, instead of ruling upon defense counsel's objection, entered into an argument with him.'"

"Learned Judge's Acid Test." The climax, however, was not yet reached. The learned trial judge announced that there were acid tests in his court, and proceeded to poll the jury.

"We do not intend to charge the trial judge with bad faith, because we recognize that many things may transpire in the heat of a trial that would not be done after sober reflection. There is a strong disinclination on the part of an appellate court to interfere with a judgment by reason of any statements of the trial judge alleged to have been prejudicial, but under the facts and circumstances of this case, we cannot avoid the conclusion that the comments of the Court complained of tended to destroy the poise of the scales of justice."

Sidener Under Most Serious Charge Ever Made Against Circuit Attorney

Two Grand Juries Exonerated Him, a Third Investigation Misfired and Now a Fourth Develops Accusation of Official Fraud.

WHEN Attorney-General Gentry charged that "a fraud was perpetrated upon the court" in the Rutherford murder case settlement, he made the most serious accusation that has been leveled against a Circuit Attorney of St. Louis, so far as local memory of the office extends.

Gentry's first object was to reopen the Rutherford case. With that done, it was deemed that a fraud serious enough to overturn a court's judgment was serious enough to warrant action against the person responsible for it, and the grand jury turned its attention to Howard Sidener, Circuit Attorney.

Removal of Sidener from office through the statute against official fraud has become the grand jury's aim. Conviction carries forfeiture of office, disability to hold office in future, and loss of salary, besides a fine or jail sentence. So far as can be learned, none of these punishments has in the past been imposed on the Circuit Attorney of St. Louis.

A Monograph on Politics. Sidener, who is 33 years old, is nearing the middle of his second four-year term. His personality and his official career form a monograph of St. Louis politics.

He came to St. Louis 25 years ago as a young college graduate from Indiana, and finished his law course at Washington University. His cousin, the late George B. Sidener, then a Police Judge, helped him to make the acquaintance of politicians. Some of his early practice was in Police Court. In 1909 his official career began with his appointment as Associate Prosecuting Attorney. He was elected Prosecuting Attorney in 1910, and re-elected in 1914 and 1918.

In the primaries of those years, through what was becoming a wide acquaintance among political workers, he showed more strength than the party leaders had allowed him in their estimates.

This encouraged Sidener to try his luck in contests for higher offices. He won the nomination for Circuit Attorney, but was beaten by a Democrat. Then he indulged in the harmless pastime of running for Mayor against Henry Kiel in the 1917 primary. "No hard feelings" into the office as an obscure young lawyer, with political backing of a sort. There was always a chance for a new Circuit Attorney to put politics aside, as Folk had done, and to make a high official record, even if circumstances did not furnish him material for such a series of big prosecutions as Folk conducted.

Official Record a Standoff. But Sidener, with earnestness of gaze and speech, and with many political friends to whom his office was always open, did not long hold out the hope of a record-making career in the circuit attorneyship. His official record, as to notable cases, soon developed something like a 50-50 balance of successes with failures.

He won the Meininger and Ross Night and Day Bank prosecutions, and lost the Ellis murder case. He lost the Lem Motlow murder case and succeeded in hanging two robbers, Merrell and Pinkley, for the murder of a policeman. He obtained life terms for four youths who killed Patrolman Grogan, but there was no result in the case of Forrest Ferguson, head of the corporation whose collapse cost creditors more than $2,000,000.

Sidener early adopted the device of issuing statements on all matters on which an announcement or an explanation from him seemed in order. He became a prolific put-ter-forth of statements, some of them declaring his intention as to the handling of criminal cases, and some explaining why results had not been all that he had hoped.

The explanations were usually plausible. Many things may happen to keep the State from winning a criminal case, and most of them appeared to happen in one or another of the cases which Sidener and his staff prosecuted. Criticism was met, though not altogether stopped, by the frank-sounding public confidences of the prosecutor.

Twice Under Inquiry. In Sidener's first term in office two grand juries took up investigations of his official conduct. A third such inquiry was begun in his second term.

The first of these inquiries was in March, 1924, when the Globe-Democrat printed articles charging irregularities in certain cases. The grand jury, without guidance of a special prosecutor, looked into the cases cited and decided that there was no occasion for criticism.

A more thorough inquiry, under the direction of special counsel, was made by the next grand jury, in April and May, 1924. Thomas T. Fauntleroy was named as special counsel, and was designated by Sidener as an assistant Circuit Attorney so that he might appear before the grand jury. After three weeks inquiry the grand juries certified that both Sidener and Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer, whom Sidener had named as an assistant, were "faithful and competent," and that their offices were conducted with "ability, integrity and zeal."

Nov. 25 last, Judge Mix ordered a grand jury investigation of Sidener's office. Jacob M. Lashly was selected as counsel for the grand jury, and Sidener consented to appoint Lashly a special assistant, as he had done in Fauntleroy's case.

Third Inquiry Misses Fire. Lashly, on Nov. 30, announced his withdrawal, saying the time was insufficient, and that his status would be illegal, as no assistant could be appointed unless a vacancy existed, and Sidener had all the assistants allowed by law. Bitter words between Judge Mix and Sidener marked the finish of this, the last attempt at an inquiry until the one begun recently by the Attorney-General.

A year ago, the Circuit Attorney's office incurred the censure of Judge Farris of the Federal Court. Mike Accardi, district attorney, was charged with violating the Mann act, and a Federal Court jury disagreed on the case. Judge Farris then suggested that the case was more suited for prosecution in the State courts.

The matter was taken to Sidener's office, and one of his assistants, Roy Fish, refused to handle the case. He said it was the policy of the office not to undertake cases which were already in the hands of the Federal authorities.

"Rank nonsense," was Judge Farris' comment. "The case in this (Federal) court and the case that should be brought in the State court are as different as day and night. It is pure foolishness for the State authorities to hesitate in this prosecution."

The case was not taken up by the Circuit Attorney, and Accardi has not been put on trial again.

Sidener's Two Big Failures. In his supplementary instructions to the Attorney-General and the grand jury, issued yesterday, Gov. Baker names the Ferguson and Motlow cases as subjects for inquiry. These are two of the three cases whose outcome has caused the greatest public disappointment since Sidener became Circuit Attorney. The other, not mentioned by the Governor, was the Albert Ellis murder case.

Sidener obtained the conviction of Ellis, largely on a signed confession in which the young man admitted the murder of Edna Ellis, his former fiancée. Ellis had duped the confession, and his counsel succeeded in having the conviction reversed by the Supreme Court. Trying the case again, without the confession, an acquittal resulted.

In the Motlow case, at the outset, there was a question of jurisdiction between St. Louis and East St. Louis. Motlow having shot a Pullman conductor on a train about to cross the river, and the victim's death, as well as Motlow's arrest, having occurred in East St. Louis, Missouri was indicted here and was adjutively to race prejudice, a Negro porter being the chief witness. Motlow was acquitted, one of the jurors expressing the opinion of the entire jury, said the State's case had not been strongly presented, and that Sidener had "got mixed up."

In the Ferguson case Sidener went to trial on an embezzlement charge, based upon Ferguson's use of more than $400,000 company funds for personal enterprises. It was shown that Ferguson, by an I O U device, obtained the money upon company checks, issued in the regular manner of the company. Hence, the element of stealth and secrecy essential to successful embezzlement prosecution was absent. Instructed acquittal resulted.

Lawyers were of the opinion that a charge of fraud, based upon the I O U's, would have been successful.

Other Charges Dismissed. Sidener then dismissed the other indictments, charging Ferguson with having made a false statement in writing to obtain credit of more than $1,000,000 from banks. This was contrary to the judgment of bankers interested in the matter, who believed that the false statement charge, and not the charge of embezzlement, should have been pressed in the first place. In his statement on this case, Sidener insisted that Murray Carleton, if he had lived, would have been punished for the dealings in which Ferguson was his aid.

Up to the time of its disposition, the Rutherford case was not the subject of anything like the public heard of it.

TWO KILLED, ONE HURT WHEN PLANE CRASHES

Three Mechanics of Fort Leavenworth Wrecked in Ship They Borrowed.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 1.—Two mechanics in the United States Army Air Service, detachment at Fort Leavenworth, were killed and a third seriously injured, when an airplane they had "borrowed" dived into the river, three miles from here, yesterday.

The two killed were Private Otto C. Hathaway of St. Joseph, Mo., and Private William Garret, Lexington, Ok. Private Leonard Linsky leaped from the plane into the river and swam a mile against the current to reach shore.

The plane was owned by C. J. Michael of Kansas City. Michael had flown to Fort Leavenworth on a visit, but rising winds had kept him from returning home. Garret was the only one of the three experienced enough to pilot the plane. He had had 30 hours in the air at Brookfield, Tex., but had returned here when he failed to qualify as an officer.

INDICTMENTS LIKELY TO NAME OTHERS WITH SIDENER

ed Circuit Judges Hamilton, Taylor, Calhoun, Hartmann, Killoren, Hall, Hogan, Titter, Falkenhahn, Reskopf and Oasing. At noon Judges Hamilton, Taylor, Calhoun, Hartmann, Killoren and Hall had appeared before the grand jury—each for five minutes or less.

It is understood that the purpose of the grand jury in summoning the judges was to determine their attitude toward recommendations of the Circuit Attorney's office.

Judge Mix has stated that he regarded such recommendations as mandatory and accepted Sidener's recommendation in the Rutherford case for this reason. Judge Calhoun and Landwehr have said in newspaper interviews that they differed with Mix on the point, and had never had any hesitancy in refusing to accept the Circuit Attorney's recommendations when they did not agree with Sidener.

Mrs. Verne R. C. Lacy, wife of one of the Rutherford counsel, and until a short while ago a stenographer in his office, was subpoenaed as a witness. Robert J. Callahan, an attorney associated with Lacy, also was summoned. Yesterday John Allen Moore, Joseph Linders and Samuel White, attorneys in Lacy's offices, and two office employees were summoned.

W. B. Schelp, a real estate dealer, with offices at 109 North Ninth street, was summoned at noon to testify. He was asked in the ante-room of the grand jury chamber if he had ever had any business dealings with any of the men mentioned in the Rutherford case. He replied that he was not sure.

The grand jury recessed at 2 p. m. for lunch, announcing that it would resume its deliberations at 5 p. m. Arthur V. Lashly, special prosecutor, came out of the grand jury room, with the grand jurors, but Attorney-General Gentry remained there. Police on guard told reporters that the Attorney-General would work through the lunch hour.

Meanwhile Circuit Attorney Sidener waited in his office on the third floor of the Municipal Court building surrounded by lawyer friends and advisors. Among the group were Patrick H. Cullen and William Baer, prominent criminal lawyers.

There was a rush at the Circuit Clerk's office to qualify as bondsmen. If citizens applying for qualification blanks. It was presumed that they were friends of those who have been mentioned in connection with the inquiry and that they had come prepared to serve as bondsmen.

The Circuit Attorney's salary and fees are in excess of $10,000 a year. Sidener, during his first term, tried to interest the Legislature in abolishing the office of Circuit and Prosecuting Attorney, in a manner which would have added about $30,000 a year to his salary. The Legislature was not interested.

In 1912, when he was Prosecuting Attorney, Sidener charged that the Circuit Attorney, Seebert G. Jones, was "secretly" conducting an investigation of his office, especially as to the disposition of "old kid" liquor cases. Such cases were a source of controversy in pre-prohibition days. Jones denied the statement, and nothing further was said.

SUPREME COURT RULES ON LIQUOR PERMITS

Upholds Revenue Commissioners' Right to Bar Denaturing Plants.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Senate refused today a drastic limitation of denaturing permits in his discretion, under the Volstead act, was upheld today by the Supreme Court.

The Court held that the commissioner had not abused his discretion in refusing a permit to the Ma-King Products Co. of Pittsburgh, which sought authority to operate a denaturing plant.

The Federal District Court for Western Pennsylvania ruled that the granting of such a permit was discretionary with the commissioner. The Court of Appeals concurred in that contention and today the Supreme Court added its approval.

The "dominant purpose" of the Volstead act was "to prevent the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage" and "that all its provisions are to be liberally construed to that end."

"It does not provide that the commissioner shall issue any liquor permits but merely that he may do so," the court continued. "It specifically requires the application to show the qualification of the applicant and authorizes the commissioner to prescribe the facts to be set forth therein."

"These provisions, as well as the purpose of the act, are entirely inconsistent with any intention on the part of Congress that the commissioner should perform the merely perfunctory duty of granting a permit to any and every applicant, without reference to his qualifications and fitness; and they necessarily imply that in order to prevent violations of the act he shall, before granting a permit, determine in the exercise of his sound discretion, whether the applicant is a fit person to be entrusted with such a privilege."

"It is clear that Congress in providing that an adverse decision of the commissioner might be reviewed in a court of equity, did not undertake to test in the courts the administrative functions of determining whether or not the permit should be granted; but that this provision is to be construed in the light of the well established rule in analogous cases, as merely giving the Court authority to determine whether upon the facts and the action of the commissioner based upon an error of law wholly unsupported by the evidence or clearly arbitrary or capricious. Here, plainly, the record of the permit involves no error of law."

MAN, 60, KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE; DRIVER ARRESTED

James Halloran, 2755 North Garrison, Fatally Hurt Crossing Grand Boulevard Near Cottage Ave.

STEPPED IN FRONT OF CAR, CHAUFFEUR SAYS

Fatality Is 65th of Kind This Year, Compared With 71 at the Corresponding Time in 1925.

James Halloran, 60 years old, a bricklayer, of 2755 North Garrison avenue, died today at Mullamphy Hospital of a fractured skull suffered last night when he was struck by an automobile when he was crossing Grand boulevard, a short distance north of Cottage avenue.

Halloran was crossing Grand from east to west at 11 p. m. when he was struck by the southbound machine driven by Earl Long, 21, a chauffeur, of 6003 Michigan avenue. Long was arrested after the accident and released on bond. Following Halloran's death, Long was rearrested for the coroner. He told police Halloran stepped from the curb into the path of his machine.

Halloran's death was the sixty-fifth motor vehicle fatality of the year, as compared with 71 during the same period last year.

One Negro Killed, Four Injured, When Auto Is Overturned.
James Thomas, 45, of 2126 Franklin avenue, a Negro, was killed and four others were injured, two of them seriously, when an automobile in which they were riding was overturned on Bellefontaine road, about five miles north of the city limits, at 7:45 a. m. today.

The accident was caused when the left rear wheel broke when the car was going about 25 miles an hour.

The other four occupants, beside Thomas, were thrown from the machine. They are: Alex Vandervier, 52, 1815 Morgan street; William Sam, 33, 107 North Channing avenue; Matthew Smith, 30, 1302 Adams street, and John Duvall, 45, 4249 Enright avenue, all Negroes. Duvall, driver of the machine, was arrested and held at Clayton for the coroner.

The Negroes were en route to Bellefontaine Farm, where they were employed in construction work.

Two other persons were seriously injured in automobile accidents yesterday, one in East St. Louis and the other in St. Louis.

Miss Gladys Willis, 17, of 2125 Bundy avenue, Granite City, died today at St. Elizabeth's Hospital of a fractured skull and internal injuries suffered yesterday when she was struck by an automobile which had just collided with another machine at McKinley and Adams streets.

The automobile which struck Miss Willis was driven by B. H. Volter of Wood River. It swerved sharply after collision with a car driven by Gus Frenkel of 1814 O street, Granite City. Both drivers are held for the coroner.

LYNCH, PRINTERS' CHIEF, APPARENTLY DEFEATED

G. P. Howard of Chicago Seems to Have Been Elected Head of Typographical Union.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 1.—James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union, and a prominent labor leader for more than 25 years, apparently has been defeated in the union's election by Charles P. Howard of Chicago.

Lynch is running 2200 votes behind Howard on returns from 735 local unions, with about 100 unions yet to be heard from. Additional returns are not expected to change the result materially. The election was held in local unions last Wednesday and results were mailed to headquarters.

ROSE STOLEN AT OPERA

Chorus Girls Report Theft from Dressing Rooms.

The "props" of the Municipal Opera was surrounded by seven members of the chorus shortly before the opening of "Eileen" last night who feared that they would be unable to go on. Someone, they said, had taken their pink silk, long-length stockings from their dressing rooms, and one of them found a pot of rouge. They were alarmed, however, from the extra people, and the incident was reported to the police.

The stockings were valued at $10 a pair. The opera officials said that the hose may possibly have become mislaid following the rehearsal Sunday night.

Dream of Social Empire Fades as $6,000,000 Bubble In Florida Land Bursts

MRS. E. T. STOTESBURY.

MRS. HUGH DILLMAN.

Canals, Golf Courses, and Yacht Clubs Laid Out, But Rich Didn't Rush to Buy Lots.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 1.—Back of the Floranada Club Development, now in voluntary bankruptcy proceedings with liabilities of more than $6,000,000 greater than its assets, lies the dream of two of America's wealthiest society matrons not only to create a miniature Florida empire exclusively for those of Social Register listing, but to create the empire builder as well.

Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia and Mrs. Hugh Dillman, formerly Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, were the women most active in backing the project, and James H. R. Cromwell, son of Mrs. Stotesbury by a former marriage, and son-in-law of Mrs. Dillman, was the man about whom their hopes centered, according to those who have followed the development closely.

Young Cromwell, 30, who was sent to public schools to become democratic and then refused to attend an economics course at the University of Pennsylvania because the professor attacked predatory wealth, is president of the American-British Improvement Corporation, the stock company that handled the plans to build the city of Floranada on 3600-acre tract four miles from Fort Lauderdale.

It was to whom Mrs. Stotesbury referred when at the laying of the cornerstone for Floranada Inn a few months ago, she said, according to press reports of the event: "It will be a great city and it will be Jimmy's city. He is making it and it will be his."

Today those interested in the project are going over the bankruptcy to find the real condition. The land, situated on the Dixie Highway and on the Gold Coast, undoubtedly is a very valuable tract and backed at least with the names of the wealthiest families of America's nobility and of some of America's wealthiest families. These families, however, are understood to have given much more of moral support—use of their names as prospective settlers and such—than of financial aid.

Dream of Rich Colony.

The project never was a real estate development scheme. It simply was a dream of getting some of the wealthiest families of both sides of the Atlantic into a colony that would be the most magnificent in the world. A brother of the deceased King of Greece permitted the statement that the former King would build there.

Most of the land originally belonged to Arthur T. Galt of Holland, Mich. Among those known here as originators of the development scheme were Myron R. Bloom, known here as a retired capitalist of New York; Bernard E. Pollak of New York; and Walter A. Hall, friend of Pollak and of Cromwell.

The story of the purchase of the land from Galt, as given out here at the time, was that Cromwell became interested in the idea and that he, Pollak and Hall went to Holland, Mich., but failed to interest Galt. Hall then interested Hugh T. Birch, law partner of Galt's father, and after several long-distance telephone conversations with E. T. Stotesbury, in Philadelphia, the deal was closed and a contract signed Sept. 8 last. The details of this contract are not known fully, but it is believed mortgages were given.

The American-British Corporation was formed and young Cromwell became its president. Bloom and Pollak later retired from the company. Harry S. Black, director of the United States Realty and Improvement Co.; John H. Pillsbury, Minneapolis flour manufacturer; Samuel Vauclain, head of the Baldwin Locomotive Works; William H. Hamilton, assistant vice president of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York; A. L. Dice, president of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad; Gide Milne, Ralph Beaser, Strassburger of Philadelphia; and William Eldridge all became interested and their names were used either as stockholders or as prospective builders in the newly formed city of Floranada. Black, it was announced, would build a plaza hotel, but later it was announced he had given up the plans temporarily. Stotesbury later transferred his holdings to Mrs. Stotesbury.

The Countess of Lauderdale, member of one of the oldest of British families, and Lord Camoys also were listed as backers. Also the Countess of Lauderdale and her son, Lord Thirsk, passed the winter in Florida and took part in such ceremonies at Floranada as the laying of the cornerstone of the inn. They and Mrs. Dillman and Mrs. Stotesbury, each spread a trowel of mortar.

Bill of Hotel Planner.

Cass Gilbert, who drew the plans for the treasury building at Washington and many other well known structures, was called in to plan hotels and Howard Major, Palm Beach architect, also was employed. Gilbert has a bill of $10,000 against the corporation. Two ocean-going freighters were chartered and one of them, the Twin Cities, sailed into Fort Lauderdale Dec. 12. Their cost was $125,000 a year and they were just to carry supplies to Floranada as freight service was had.

A seal for the city—the seal of Florida with the American eagle on one side and the British lion on the other—was made and offices costing in rental $100,000 a year were opened at Miami. Another of $20,000 a year was opened at Fort Lauderdale and branch offices were established in other cities. About 300 salesmen were employed to sell lots at Floranada. Venetian canals were planned. No colony in the world would have rivaled this one—if it had been completed.

The New York Title and Mortgage Co. gave an $8,000,000 policy covering titles to tracts sold. The lowest priced lot was $4000. Thomas W. Sears of Philadelphia was called in as landscape architect and architect-General John L. Chamberlain, retired Inspector General of the Army, as chief engineer.

Gradual Fading of Dream.

But the lots didn't sell as planned. Some who had promised to buy didn't. Suddenly there was a deflation movement in Florida real estate. Mrs. Stotesbury and Mrs. Dillman each guaranteed notes for loans of around $250,000, but gradually the dream began to fade.

In fact of this the original plans were changed. It was decided to form an American-British Florida Club at Floranada with the wealthiest of each nation as members. Two thousand members—by invitation—only—at $2000 each, was the plan. This would have raised $4,000,000 for development purposes. The original plans could have been carried out and all probably would have been well.

But it was found difficult to promote this, although Lord Camoys sought to interest prominent persons. He was listed as vice president of the proposed clubhouse. Shooting lodges, polo and aviation fields, and tennis courts were planned. With the failure of this plan it became obvious to the various officers of the American-British Corporation that bankruptcy was inevitable and the petition was filed with E. A. Tamm vice president, and Walter A. Hall, secretary, listed as the petitioners. No list of directors ever has been given out.

LACLEDE GAS CO. PUTS VALUATION AT $74,795,466

Asks State Public Commission to Allow It to Earn a "Fair Return" on That Sum.

THIS WOULD JUSTIFY 40 PCT. HIGHER RATE

Also It Would Give Book Value of $350 a Share to Stock C. A. Munroe Bought at $102.50.

In a lawyer's brief filed today with the Missouri Public Service Commission, the Laclede Gas Light Co. asks that it be allowed a valuation of $74,795,466 upon which to earn a return.

Such a valuation would require a gas rate in St. Louis of more than $1.40 a 1000 feet, if the company is to earn a "fair return." The present rate is $1. The company has disavowed any intention of asking such a rate, yet insists upon a valuation that would justify it.

Such a valuation also would return to Charles A. Munroe, who, with associates bought control of the company in 1924, a profit of many millions of dollars. They purchased control at $102.50 a share for the common stock. With a valuation approaching $75,000,000, this common stock would appreciate in value upon the company's books to more than $350 a share.

Investment Not $40,000,000.

The company asserts that the cost of reproducing the property at prices prevailing in September, 1925, is the only measure of its value for rate-making purposes. The actual investment—considerably less than $40,000,000—has no place in determining present-day value, the company asserts. The outstanding market value of its securities has no bearing. No deduction should be made for depreciation, the only measure is reproduction new.

The city has set $38,770,000 as its estimate of the fair value of the company, or less than half what the company claims. The reproduction figure of the city was $54,961,650. The city had 15 days in which to submit a reply. The company has the privilege of rebuttal within 10 days. Then will come oral arguments, probably about July 1, when the commission will begin consideration of the case. A decision is not likely before autumn.

Seven Years of Hearings.

The valuation proceeding has so far consumed seven years. Hearings before the Public Service Commission in January required five weeks and the transcript of evidence submitted filled 3560 typewritten pages. The company's brief lists 277 printed pages.

The city had 15 days in which to submit a reply. The company has the privilege of rebuttal within 10 days. Then will come oral arguments, probably about July 1, when the commission will begin consideration of the case. A decision is not likely before autumn.

and live in comfort," he once said to a bank employee.

"I wear a suit that cost me $45. I judge yours cost a little more. My home life is simple. My dinners at home probably cost slightly less than yours. My home itself is small and costs little to keep up. We need only enough money to buy the things to support our individual tastes. Aside from that, my money and yours means nothing."

It was this philosophical outlook that caused William E. Rutledge, to invest his money in enterprises that would help the development of the country and bring the necessities of life more nearly within reach of the farmer and laborer. His inventions, used in the wire industry during the early years of his career, brought the price of barked wire needed by stockmen to 12 per cent of the amount for which it originally sold. His ingenuity opened the European market for American-made steel goods. His belief in the future of the South caused him to abandon his office on the executive boards of the U. S. Steel Corporation and other internationally known companies and devote his energies and a great part of his fortune to aid in building facilities to develop the potentially rich but economically poor states of Louisiana and Texas.

Associate of F. M. Ludlow.

Edenborn was associated with F. M. Ludlow in the organization of the first wire mill in St. Louis, about 1870. In 1898 he incorporated the American Steel and Wire Co. of New Jersey, which was sold to the U. S. Steel Corporation in 1901 for a reported consideration of $100,000,000.

In full sympathy with the taste and ambition of her husband, Mrs. Rutledge, who before her marriage was Miss Sarah Drain, daughter of John Drain of St. Louis, accompanied her life to his and helped him to build. Her knowledge of the projects that he controlled caused his business associates to elect her his successor as head of the Edenborn Lines, both in Louisiana and Texas. She is at present making her home with a niece of her husband in Shreveport.

Stray Monkey That Bit Boy Not Yet Identified

Zoo Keeper Believes Animal Is "Harold," Whose Owner Lives on Shenandoah Avenue.

The small white-faced monkey which was captured and taken to the zoo yesterday after biting 10-year-old Karl Kountz of 3215 Virginia avenue, upon the arm, looks like an old offender, an ex-terminator, George P. Vierheller, secretary of the Zoological Board.

Secretary Vierheller believes that the runaway is "Harold," the liberty-loving pet of a youth who lives on Shenandoah avenue. On March 24, Harold snatched spring from the air, slipped his leash and wandered at adventure through the neighborhood. His first overt act was to put on a bath-tub party. This occurred in a home at 4010 Shenandoah. Harold kept intruding on a day until he had had his fun. Then he was captured by police and taken to the monkey house where his owner claimed him. Harold's identity has not been fully established, although Vierheller has a good eye for monkeys, and in his opinion it is the same animal.

FORMER PREACHER PLACED ON TRIAL FOR MAIL FRAUDS

Sixty-Five Witnesses, Many of Them Clergymen, in U. S. Court to Testify Against W. E. Rutledge.

Sixty-five witnesses, half of them clergymen of various denominations, were present in Federal Judge Farris' Court today for the beginning of the trial of William E. Rutledge, 38 years old, a former Baptist preacher, editor of the Preachers' Magazine and a militant reformer in East St. Louis a score of years ago, on charges of using the mails to defraud in the sale of stock in the defunct Economy Oil Co.

As organizer and trustee of the oil company which was capitalized at $5,000,000 and had offices in his residence at 435 North Kirkwood road, Kirkwood, Rutledge is alleged to have sold $258,000 in stock, to 2000 persons, the majority of them clerical readers of the Preachers' Magazine.

Ministers Among Witnesses.

About 20 of the 40 witnesses summoned by the Government are ministers, active and retired, and one is said to be a Bishop. They invested their savings in the oil stock—and lost. Rutledge maintains he was a loser, too. He recently told Judge Farris he was without funds to retain counsel or bring witnesses here. Judge Farris thereupon appointed Matt J. Holland and Carmen Newcomb to be defense attorneys, and the 20 witnesses, brought here at the Government's expense. The defense witnesses include clergymen and oil men.

When the veniremen were asked by Assistant District Attorney Statter for the names of any persons they knew of any reason why they could not conscientiously try the case, A. F. Fuller of Maplewood, a member of the panel, replied:

"Yes, I know of several reasons. I don't believe I can abide by the rule of court that a man on trial is presumed to be innocent until proven guilty."

One of Jurymen Excused.

"Any other reasons?" Statter asked.

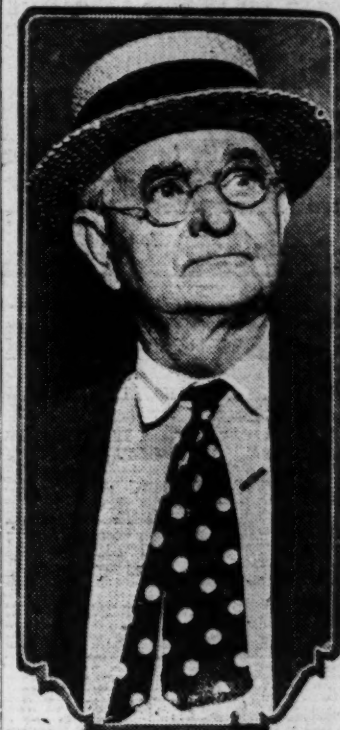

Fuller's answer was interrupted by Judge Farris: "If I instructed you to select a defendant in custody, I presume to be innocent until proven guilty by the preponderance of evidence and beyond a reasonable doubt, could you abide?"

"Oh, I guess so," said Fuller. Pressed by Statter for his other "reasons," Fuller continued: "I don't want to disqualify myself from jury duty, but there are many rules of the court that apply in criminal cases that I cannot subscribe to."

"Have you ever thought of running for the Legislature to change those rules?" inquired Judge Farris.

"No," said Fuller, smiling. "That's all."

Charges in Indictment.

The indictment against Rutledge was announced last Dec. 12. Rutledge had been arrested Aug. 12 at the Federal Building on a warrant charging him with mailing "false and fraudulent" sales literature of his oil company to George L. Newkirk of Warrensburg, Mo., who paid $300 for stock.

Postoffice Inspector Utley, who testified that Rutledge's operations, said many buyers of the oil stock from Rutledge were ministers who could not afford to speculate, but bought the stock on representations that it would earn dividends as high as 800 per cent, and enable them to provide college education for their children.

Organization of the Economy Oil Co. on a declaration of trust, with Rutledge as secretary-treasurer, was announced in 1921 in the Preachers' Magazine, which, in addition to publishing oil propaganda, contained pulpits "pompous" outlines of sermons to be padded out with a minimum of mental exertion. From then until his arrest, Rutledge enticed his readers with accounts of operations in Kentucky, Illinois, Arkansas and Texas. Holes actually were drilled in some places, but the holes were very dry. "He drilled more dry holes than any man before him," was the way one writer epitomized Rutledge's oil promotion career.

PRESIDENT MACHADO OF PORTUGAL RESIGNS

Seven Army Divisions Entrain for Capital — Labor to Oppose Dictatorship.

By the Associated Press.
LISBON, June 1.—Bernardino Machado, President of the republic, has resigned.
Seven military divisions, commanded by Gen. Gomes da Costa, commander of the Northern revolutionary forces, are entraining for Lisbon.
Until Gen. da Costa arrives, the Government will continue in the hands of Commander Mendes Cabecadas, one of the leaders in last Saturday's overthrow of the Da Silva ministry. He yesterday assumed the premiership on the invitation of President Machado.
The revolutionists last night made known to the President their desire for the formation of a new Government entirely outside of the political parties.
The Confederation of Labor is making preparations to oppose any attempt to establish a military dictatorship.
Revolutionists at Torres Novas have arrested Senator Pereira Osorio and Deputy Alvaro Castro, the latter leader of the Republican party in the Chamber of Deputies.
The newspapers print a declaration by the radical party declaring that they will support a Government constituted in accordance with the program of the military junta of national safety.

Nature's Way Is Best!

Old before your time! That's what auto-intoxication means. If you don't correct the clogged condition. And doctors very frankly state that there's no better way than Nature's Remedy—because its action is absolutely natural.

Men and women who "take only an occasional" NR tablet feel better all the time! They are spared biliousness, and "sick headaches." How much better this purely vegetable laxative is for the system than strong, sickening purgatives!

Get a FREE BOX by writing A. H. Lewis Medicine Co., Dept. 7, St. Louis—or a pocket tin now, for a quarter, at any drugstore. Soon you'll be saying—

"That's what Nature's Remedy did for ME!"

LEO LANDAU, FORMER CIVIC LEADER, DIES

Succumbs to Heart Disease—
Wrote Novel Based on St. Louis Boodle Expose.

Leo A. Landau, former St. Louis department store manager, civic crusader and writer of a novel with local settings, died at 1 a. m. today of heart disease, in the Jewish Hospital.

He was taken to the hospital a few days ago from his home, 5277 A Waterman avenue, next door to the home of his father, Maurice Landau, head of the Globe Shoe Co., at 5276. He was 45 years old, and had been in failing health for a year.

Mr. Landau, as a young man, was advertising manager of the Globe Shoe and Clothing Co., headed by his father, and located at Seventh street and Franklin avenue. Before he was 30 years old he was general manager of the store. He also was president of the Franklin Avenue Business Men's Association, first vice president of the Associated Retailers and treasurer of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America.

Worked to Get Free Bridge.
He was active in support of the Free Bridge project, and went before the Municipal Assembly and the Legislature in behalf of several measures favored by mercantile and public improvement bodies.

In 1909, when the revelations of the St. Louis boodle inquiry of 1901-02 were still in the public mind, Mr. Landau wrote a book which he titled "The Big Clinch," and which purported to be a story of political corruption and big business influences in "Louisiana," another name for St. Louis. The characters were in some cases easily recognizable, and some of the episodes were records of actual occurrences, established by testimony in the boodle trials. Some other episodes of a society nature were not matters of record, and tended to give the book a general muckraking air. It did not prove a large seller, and Mr. Landau later engaged in litigation with the local publisher who got it out.

The Globe Shoe & Clothing Co. became bankrupt in 1912. Later Mr. Landau removed from St. Louis, and for more than 10 years he was in Milwaukee, being proprietor of a moving picture theater there. He returned to St. Louis after his health failed.

Mr. Landau is survived by his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Walter L. Rubens, and a son, Homer Landau.

The funeral will be at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Rindskopf funeral chapel, 5216 Delmar boulevard. Burial will be in Mt. Olive cemetery.

Fined $100 for Careless Driving.
After he had testified in Police Court today that Israel Mason, Negro taxicab chauffeur, almost ran him down at Seventh and Chestnut streets, last night, Patrolman Allen Downey of Central District was asked if he shot at Mason following the incident. He replied: "No, but I would have if he hadn't had two women passengers in the cab." Mason denied Downey's charge of careless driving. He was fined $100 by Provisional Judge Stout.

U. S. Ship for Italian Veterans.
ROME, June 1.—Ambassador Fletcher yesterday officially informed Premier Mussolini that the United States Government would send a ship to Italy to provide free passage to the United States of the Italian veterans of the American

World War army who recently were made eligible to enter America over the emigration quota. The Ambassador requested that Italy send a warship with the veterans as an escort of honor and that a delegation of Italian army veterans accompany the former American soldiers as a manifestation of friendship between the two nations.

He said that the ship was expected to sail within the next two months.

Know the Magic Story of Internal Bathing

This fact is definitely known. Ninety-five per cent of all disease originates in the intestinal tract. Not five...but ninety-five!

Internal Bathing with the J. B. L. Cascade is the one sure and successful means of cleansing this "danger zone." It has brought back to approximately one million people the joyous, vibrant flow of vigorous health. If you suffer from intestinal clogging, sick headaches, dizziness, poor color and fatigue—beware! They are symptoms of intestinal disorder—and frequently graver disease to follow.

This week we are making a special feature of Internal Bathing. Now you can learn in all detail what it is, how it works, what it will do, what it has accomplished—FREE and without obligation. Call and see our display and get enlightening literature.

FISH LAWS ALL WRONG, SAYS ARRESTED MAN

Izaak Walton League Official Charged With Breaking One of Them, Explains.

The Missouri game laws with regard to trout and artificial bait are all wrong, according to Harry A. Collins, State secretary of the Izaak Walton League of Missouri, who was arrested Saturday with Bruce Ramsey, former president of the league, while fishing for trout with artificial bait at Meramec Springs, near St. James, Mo.

Collins and Ramsey contend that the artificial bait law was enacted to protect bass, and that no good fisherman would think of observing it with regard to trout.

"Neither Mr. Ramsey or myself violated the law or the intent of the law," Collins declared in a statement today. "In fact, there is no law on Missouri statutes that can be applied to trout fishing."

"The artificial bait law which prohibits the use of artificial bait between April 10 and June 1 was enacted for the purpose of protecting bass during the spawning period. This law is rigidly followed by all sportsmen in respect to bass, but in turn is disregarded by fly fishermen when fishing for trout."

"The usual spawning period for trout is from Nov. 15 to Feb. 15. The open season on trout should extend from April 1 to Oct. 1. This is the law in all states having trout waters in the same latitude as Missouri."

"If we apply the artificial bait law to trout fishing we close the season on trout to fly fishermen just when it should be open and permit the taking of trout when it should be closed."

"The Missouri Fish and Game Department permits the use of artificial bait for trout at the Bennett's Mills State Park. This ruling automatically nullifies the artificial bait law in respect to trout. Our lawmakers cannot be expected to have a scientific knowledge of fish life. Few of them know the difference between a trout and a bass."

"It is not Mamsey and myself that are on trial, but the entire fly fishing fraternity of Missouri who are fighting for laws based on scientific and biological facts. If a test case will pave the way for the enactment of such laws we are willing to make it."

AMERICANS WINNERS OF BALLOON RACE

Van Orman First, Scott Field, Ill., Contestant Second in Bennett Cup Competition.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, June 1.—The Stars and Stripes were flying over the Belgian Aero Club today to indicate America's victory in the international balloon race for the second Gordon Bennett trophy.

The race was won by the Goodyear II, manned by Wade T. Van Orman and Walter M. Morgan, which covered 524 miles, landing at Solvesborg, Southern Sweden. Second place was taken by the United States Army balloon S-16, from Scott Field, Ill., while the third American entry, the Akron N. A., was disqualified when she struck the ground, tumbling out her assistant pilot, H. W. Maxson. Anxiety for the pilot, John A. Boettner, was allayed when news came this morning that the Akron had landed safely in Holland last night.

Van Orman, pilot of the winner, is expected to arrive in Brussels in a day or two to receive the trophy, the first prize of 12,500 francs and half the amount of the total entrance fees, which are 500 francs for each of the 15 competitors.

Capt. Gray and Lieut. Johnson also Finished Second in American Race.

Capt. Gray and Lieut. Johnson, who were second in the Gordon Bennett race, also were the second place team in the National Elimination Balloon race at Little Rock, Ark., May 3. In that contest they flew 635 miles to Mount Holly, N. C.

Gray is engineer officer at Scott Field. He is 37 years old and entered the army in January, 1915, as an enlisted man. He was commissioned an infantry officer at the outbreak of the World War and was transferred to the Air Service Aug. 29, 1921.

Johnson, who is 29, entered the army as a Lieutenant of Field Artillery in 1917 and was transferred to the Air Service in 1920. He was formerly a captain, but returned to the rank of First Lieutenant in a general adjustment of army rank which followed an overhauling of the promotion list. He was in command of the ship TC-3 when it lost its rudder over Granite City 18 months ago and brought it down safely in St. Charles County.

Boettner Piloted Dirigible That Fell in Chicago, Killing 11 Persons.

CHICAGO, June 1.—John A. Boettner, pilot of the American balloon Akron N. A., was pilot of the ill-fated dirigible which crashed through the roof of the Illinois Trust & Savings Co. bank here July 21, 1921, killing 11 persons and injuring 37. Boettner had taken the dirigible, owned by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., out for a test flight. While over the business district of Chicago the airship caught fire and fell 500 feet crashing through the roof of the bank. Boettner and Harry Wacker, a mechanic, were the only ones of the five in the balloon to land safely. They came down in a street with parachutes. Most of the other dead and injured were employees of the bank.

Marriage as an Antidote.

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, Md., June 1.—Dr. Albert Macartney of Chicago believes there is a connection between marriage and theology. In a debate with his brother, Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, at the Presbyterian convention, he said: "The only trouble with Brother 'Clarence' is that he is not married. If he were, he wouldn't have so much time to worry over other people's theology."

COURT UPHOLDS MAJORITY RULE IN RIO GRANDE SUIT
Minority Bondholders Is Denied Right to Delay Completion of Reorganization Plan.

By the Associated Press.
DENVER, Colo., June 1.—Minority bondholders of a corporation have no right to delay the completion of a reorganization plan at the expense of the majority interest, solely in an effort to obtain more favorable terms, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit has decreed. The ruling was made in denying the appeal of Harold Palmer of New York, a dissenting bondholder, to intervene in the reorganization of the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad Co.

The opinion, upholding the decision of the United States District Court for Colorado, which handled the road's receivership, has just been made available. Mr. Palmer, in seeking intervention in the foreclosure proceedings, asked an upset price sufficient to pay his bonds in full, or the postponement of the foreclosure sale, and consequently on the reorganization, which 84 per cent of the bondholders desired to have completed as soon as possible.

The court refused to admit Palmer as a party to the proceedings on the ground that the mortgage trustee represented all bondholders until its conduct was impeached on the ground of fraud. This decision was affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals, which held that the upset price for the railroad, amounting to about 30 per cent for the bondholders, was adequate and that acquiescence therein by the trustee did not show either bad faith or bad judgment.

LIFE TERM GIVEN MAN WHOSE BOMB KILLED 3

Michigan Judge Regrets He Cannot Impose the Death Penalty.

By the Associated Press.
MUSKEGON, Mich., June 1.—Circuit Judge John Vanderwerp today sentenced A. K. Bartlett, 28 years old, Blue Lake Township Constable, to life imprisonment for the murder of August Krubaech, his daughter, Janet, and her fiancé, William Franke, killed Thursday by a bomb which Bartlett sent through the mails. Judge Vanderwerp expressed regret that the State law does not provide for capital punishment.

Bartlett's confession, made public today, disclosed that he began to construct the bomb two years ago.

"I thought that maybe I would want to use it," Bartlett explained. It was two years ago that township politics involved Krubaech and Bartlett in bitter opposition to each other.

Bartlett in his confession expressed regret that the bomb killed Janet and Franke. "It was for Krubaech alone," he said. "I conceived the idea only last Wednesday of sending the bomb through the mail and so I went to Montague and purchased the wrapper stickers, then took the package directly to the Muskegon postoffice and mailed it. I did not know that the bomb had killed Krubaech and the other two until I was told so by the officers early Friday morning."

Refusing again the services of an attorney engaged by his father, Bartlett told officers he wanted to be on his way to prison as soon as possible. "I hate to leave the folks; they need me, but as far as my own life is concerned it makes no difference; I am content," he said.

PONZI MISSING FROM COURT, $10,000 BOND FORFEITED

He Does Not Appear for Re-Sentencing for Fraud After Appeal Is Denied.

BOSTON, June 1.—Charles Ponzi, get-rich-quick financier, under sentence of seven to nine years in Massachusetts as a "common and notorious thief," failed to appear in Superior Criminal Court today for re-sentencing after loss of his appeal. Ponzi has been at liberty in $10,000 surety and Judge Fosdick ordered a default.

The State probably will proceed against Mrs. Bernilde B. Malaguti of Boston, who became Ponzi's surety on July 13 of last year, it was said.

Brennan said Ponzi had not received official notification to appear in Boston and probably would make no decision as to his course until the papers were received.

DURKIN GOES TO TRIAL

Gunman Captured Here Charged With Killing U. S. Agent.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Martin J. Durkin goes to trial today for the fatal shooting of Edwin Shanahan, federal agent, whose death started the long hunt for Durkin which terminated with his capture at St. Louis several months ago. Shanahan was killed when he surprised Durkin, sought for an automobile theft, in a garage here last fall.

The unknown element in the trial is the testimony of three women. Two of them Durkin deserted. The third is Irma Sullivan, 18-year-old girl, who married the prisoner during a brief stop in his flight to the Pacific Coast. She was with him when he was arrested aboard a train at St. Louis. Betty Werner, who deserted her husband for Durkin and who was in turn deserted by him, is relied on by the State as one of its principal witnesses. The prosecution expects to obtain from her Durkin's story of the Shanahan shooting, although she did not witness it. The third feminine figure is Ruth Fieback, who appeared after Durkin was captured, announced herself as his legal wife and obtained a divorce. The State has a second murder charge which it will press should Durkin be acquitted of Shanahan's murder. It alleges the killing of a Chicago detective, shot to death with another man when a police ambush went astray during a visit of Durkin here several months before his final capture. Durkin claims the officer was killed by shots fired at him as he fled.

VETERAN DIES IN PARADE

Succumbs to Heart Disease While Wife Watches for Him.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Mrs. Anna Dawes watched the Memorial day parade here in which her husband, 55 years old, was marching. Column after column of John's comrades went by and were recognized by Mrs. Dawes, but he was not among them. A surging crowd a block and a half away drew her attention and here she found her husband who had dropped dead from heart disease as he neared the point where his wife waited.

Two Bootblacks Killed by Gunmen.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Andrew George and another man, proprietors of a shoe-shining stand, were killed and Constantine Seveles was wounded by gunmen yesterday. Their two assailants met the three men in an alley in the Hyde Park district and opened fire after a brief altercation escaped in an automobile. The victims were accosted a short distance from their stand by two men who leaped from an automobile standing at the curb. Seveles said he had met the bootblacks only a few minutes before and that their assailants tried to hold them up. The police did not believe this story, however, and shooting was the result of the theory that the trouble.

PILE OF HIDDEN GOLD FOUND ON FARM

Supposed to Have Been Buried
During Civil War—Map
Gave Clue to It

By the Associated Press.

DEMOPOLIS, Ala., June 1.—
Gold, estimated at many thousand dollars has been found on the Whitfield farm near here. The cache believed to have been hidden from Union armies during the Civil War by C. Boaz Whitfield, was discovered by means of a key left to his son, C. Gayon Whitfield, Mid-dlesboro, Ky.

The treasure consisted of $20 gold pieces, minted in 1850 and before. It was found in an old powder can that crumbled on touch. Gold pieces had been found on the farm from time to time but search for buried caches was not made by the Whitfield family until the location of a key map in Kentucky.

A gang of Negroes digging for a buried "boundary stake," unearthed the treasure yesterday. The Negroes dug for a week without success. They then stumbled on the powder can and its contents.

Nine heirs may bid for the gold.
Some of them are descendants of brothers of C. Boaz Whitfield, who was the son of Gen. Nathan Bryan Whitfield, pioneer.

Many of the South's aristocratic and wealthy families buried money and gold and silver plate during the Civil War to prevent seizure
by Union soldiers.

BRITISH UNEMPLOYED

REACH 1,600,000

Total Does Not Include Coal Miners—Under Million Before Strike.

By FRANCIS W. HIRST.
Formerly Editor of the Economist.
London.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
LONDON, June 1.—Persistent but hitherto unconfirmed rumors of a coal settlement have contributed to maintain stock exchange quotations during the past week despite the semi-paralysis of business and transport because of the restricted supplies of fuel. Apart from the coal miners the total number of British unemployed has risen since the strike from under 1,000,000 to over 1,600,000.

Very little pig iron is being produced and a small premium of a half crown is being charged on time in the market. The Cleveland No. 1 export price is 75 shillings.

In the textile trades the undertone remains fairly good, though the lack of fuel has caused an extension of holidays or short times in Lancashire and Yorkshire mills. London wool sales will be resumed today. They will continue for eight days. The market anticipates firmness in fine wools and weakness in the coarser grades.

Raw jute first mark actuals of May and June have declined to 438 and the low quotations have brought Dundee manufacturers a large trade in sacks and bags and big orders for linoleums for the United States.

The coal stoppage is causing much loss and inconvenience to British shipping, especially to our going vessels requiring bunker coals. British seafarers are coaling, where possible, at the nearest continental ports.

Another strong bank return has raised the reserve and the proportion of reserve to liabilities. The termination of the Riff campaign has raised the value of Spanish securities and temporarily has steadied the French franc. Under these favorable influences gilt edged securities are firm and India stocks are exceptionally strong on the high credit of the Indian Government which is raising a rupee loan in India at about 4 1/2 per cent for the purpose of reducing its sterling debt. The value of India securities is now almost equivalent to British guaranteed loans. New Zealand is borrowing £6,000,000 here at 5 1/2 per cent. The proceeds will be used for refunding.

Pineapple "Trust" Charges Dropped
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Federal Trade Commission has dismissed its complaint against Swift & Co., Chicago, and the Maine and Honolulu incorporations of Libby, McNeill & Libby. It charged suppression of competition in the pineapple industry in Hawaii, through the acquisition of the capital stock of the Thomas Pineapple Co., Ltd., the Honolulu Pineapple Co., Ltd., the Kahala Pineapple Co., Ltd., and the Koolau Fruit Co., Ltd., all Hawaiian concerns. Commissioners Nugent and Thompson dissented.

Found Dead With Pistol Loaded.
By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, June 1.—W. F. Schultz, 50 years old, proprietor of a soft drink place, was found dead in a living room back of his store, a bullet wound in his head. A loaded automatic pistol was in his hand, but none of the shells was exploded. On the floor nearby was an unsigned note, written in almost illegible hand. It read, "Negroes took $80 from me." Police advanced the theory that he had been gambling with Negroes and that he was shot in an argument.

Man Found Dead in Home.
William H. Moran, 47 years old, a laborer, was found dead in his home, 4551 Kennerly avenue, when his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan, returned home at 2 p. m. yesterday. A bottle which had contained poison was beside the couch. Mrs. Sullivan told police her brother had been drinking heavily.

SAYS MEXICAN POLICE CHIEF

LED MEN WHO ATTACKED HER

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)
VERA CRUZ, Mexico, June 1.—Daniel Aguilar, chief of police of the municipality of Vera Cruz, is leader of a bandit gang when off duty, according to charges made against him. Following the filing of charges he is reported to have fled.

Simon Tecan and his wife say a week ago as they were returning home in the evening, four masked men, one of whom, Senora Tecan says, she recognized as Aguilar, overpowered Tecan and carried him off, while two others, said to be Leopoldo Garcia and Eraqulo Gache, police constables under Aguilar, seized her. She says Gache struck her across the face with a whip and both men attacked her. Aguilar, she alleges, took from her 20 pesos ($10), a shawl and everything of value that she had. Meanwhile Tecan had been beaten and robbed.

Easy Washer

—That Washes, Rinses and Dries the Clothes at the Same Time

Housewives will be intensely interested in the first showing of the New Easy—it is the most remarkable labor-saving Washer that has ever been designed. To the splendid Easy vacuum cup washing method is now added an amazing new device for drying clothes, as well as for handling all washing, bluing and rinsing waters mechanically. No time, no effort is wasted—the clothes are clean and ready to iron in a matter of moments.

The Way the New Drying Feature of the Easy Operates

The dryer unit is the smaller tub—a rotating basket within a copper tank, with bearings that reduce vibration to almost nothing. Clothes are dried practically smooth, with no danger to buttons. The washing tub may be in operation simultaneously with the dryer.

NOW! - an amazing new method for drying clothes with the NEW Easy Washer

Almost magical—hard to believe —but all true

For the first time, a washing machine that washes, rinses, and dries all at the same time.... Dries for line or ironing without wringer.... Handles all the water.... No water to lift or carry; not a drop wasted.... Makes its own suds in forty seconds.... New water-circulating system returns all soapsuds to wash-tub.... Returns rinse and blue waters to rinse and bluing tubs.... When through washing, the new Easy even empties itself into drain or sink.... Does complete washing, rinsing and drying faster than any other washer.... Saves ironing time; dries clothes without wrinkles.... Safeguards buttons.... Gas heater keeps the water hot.... Washes more gently and thoroughly than human hands.... Does all these things so easily and simply—touch a button, move a lever and it's done.

Two Tubs . . the small tub dries while the large tub washes

The Magic of the New Easy You can now rinse and blue and dry one batch of clothes while another batch is washing. With separate compartments for washing and drying, one operation does not interfere with the others—a marvelous Time-Saver!

Three minutes—and DRY In the wonderful new Easy Dryer, clothes are dried ready for the line in 3 minutes! On cold or rainy days, run the dryer a few minutes longer and clothes are dry enough to iron at once.

No water to lift or carry . . . not a drop wasted One of the new Easy's secrets is the magic way in which all the water is handled for you. It's so easy, and so simple!

You don't lift as much as a cupful of water with this new Easy. That's all done for you by the new water-circulating system offered for the first time to American housewives in this new Easy Washer. The hot soapsuds whisked out of the clothes in the dryer are returned to the washing tub, automatically—not a drop is wasted. This means economy of soap and gas for heating the water. The rinsing and bluing water are sent back into the rinse and bluing tubs as the marvelous new dryer takes the water from the clothes. You have never before seen anything like it in any washer!

Touch a lever—the new Easy empties itself And—when you have finished washing and drying, just move a little handle and the new Easy empties itself into the drain or the sink. Then—a few swishes of a cloth and your Easy is as clean and bright as ever. Simply no work at all!

FASTER—You wash, rinse and dry at ONCE The new Easy saves all the time it would take to do these things separately. Washday time can now be counted in minutes. This sounds almost too amazing to be true, but—see this miracle for yourself and be convinced.

Never a wrinkle to iron out—safeguards buttons It's far easier to iron clothes washed and dried in the new Easy. Not a wrinkle will you find when you wash and dry in this Washer. And as for buttons—you needn't even bother to examine clothes for loose or lost buttons—you know they can't come off in the new Easy.

Gas heater keeps the water hot Another of the many handy features is this gas heater under the washing tub. All through the largest washing, you keep the water just hot enough. Then—too, you may sterilize white clothes right in the washing tub if you wish.

Your whole week's washing FREE

Try this magic new Easy Washer free in your home with your own clothes. See how the Easy makes its own soapsuds in less than a minute—how you can wash, rinse, and dry your clothes in one operation. See how time is saved and all hard work banished forever. Call the Easy Dealer whose advertisement appears on the next page and have him bring the new Easy to your home and show you a miracle. Easy monthly payments. A demonstration does not obligate you in any way.

If you live out of the city, we will gladly give you the address of your Easy Dealer if you will write us.

Lewis graphic statement, which was not completely the disclosure of Senator Coolidge regarding the efforts of President Coolidge to control the differences of the commission, followed a devastating attack of former Commissioner William S. Culbertson by Commissioner Edward P. Costigan.

Costigan Replies to Culbertson. Costigan, taking the stand to reply to Culbertson's recent defense of the President's conduct in the sugar controversy of 1924, declared that in some respects the evidence of the former commissioner, now the American Minister to Rumania, was "deplorably false."

Against Minister Culbertson, Costigan called as witness Tariff Commissioner Culbertson. He asserted bluntly that the testimony of the Minister was inconsistent with the straightforward public conduct of Tariff Commissioner Culbertson.

Costigan replied warmly to Culbertson's charge that improper use had been made of his private letters and memoranda. He referred particularly to the letter which Culbertson wrote to him (Costigan) after his arrival at Bucharest, advising a "raw" appointment by the President to the Tariff Commission.

"Upon a review of the circumstances," said Costigan, "it must be evident that the use of the Bucharest letter to effect Mr. Culbertson's self-appointment was dictated by the public interest. To have remained silent in the face of Mr. Culbertson's attack on his earlier position and his former associates, in my judgment, would have been equivalent to acting as an accessory to the violation of the law."

The Bucharest letter was mailed to me by Mr. Culbertson with full knowledge that I regarded his communications on public matters as no sense private and as essentially of public concern. Under no circumstances would I have considered myself gravely at fault if the Bucharest letter had been withheld from your investigation. To maintain the truth was the sole and inevitable mission of that letter.

"Culbertson Exhibit A." Culbertson himself, the witness said, might be offered as "Exhibit A" among the proofs of the destruction of the Tariff Commission was a nonpartisan governmental agency.

He said that in the light of the understanding which had existed between them, Culbertson's present claim of confidence was "both belated and untenable."

"Mr. Culbertson's testimony," he continued, "pictured the President as a man who was interested in the sugar lobby. I thought at the time that it must have seemed to him that the letter was being demanded of one who would be unwilling to say no."

"Culbertson sympathized with my point of view, but expressed the fear that if I did not yield some undesirable person might be appointed in my place."

"I went to the White House that same afternoon. The President greeted me cordially and said in his quiet way, 'Mr. Lewis, I am going to resign you.' He reached over on his desk and took up a

Abd-el-Krim Bows to the Will Of Allah and French Rifles For the Sake of His People Interview With Riff Sultan After He Gave Himself Into the Hands of the Foreign Legion—Bitter Against Spaniards.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch from the Chicago Daily News. Copyright 1926.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN THE RIFF, May 29. (Delayed)—"Abd-el-Krim, Abd-el-Krim! C'est lui. Er kommt, er kommt!" These polyglot cries arose from the soldiers of the Foreign Legion as the leader of the Riffian revolt against French and Spanish authority entered the French lines to give himself up.

There he came, less than half a mile away, slowly down the trail which the Foreign Legion had carved on a spur of Bousaada Mountain. He rode a white horse and was clad in a gray djellaba. He rode listlessly, without once looking back.

It took Abd-el-Krim at least 20 minutes to reach the stream bed, but the legionnaires and shouting native soldiers were running to meet him.

A camel convoy was just crossing the stream. The animals were frightened by the wild yells and bumped one another and huddled together, completely blocking the ford.

Above these cries and this disorder the long file of 50 horsemen came winding quietly down. Impassive on his favorite horse, the redoubtable master of the Riffian tribes—whom even the French soldiers called Sultan—came riding toward the French lines.

Receiving the prisoner, the sharp voice of an officer rose over the clamor: "Clear the way!" Complete silence fell. The Lieutenant commanding the Spaniards halted an instant and presented Abd-el-Krim to the Major commanding the Foreign Legion, then rode over.

After six hours on horseback Krim needed a bite to eat and a cup of coffee. In company with his cousin, Abd-el-Kad and his brother-in-law, Bouhar, he sat under an olive tree in the shade. Accompanied by an Arab interpreter, the correspondent approached, and was introduced.

commanding place in the commission. Lewis fully supported the statement of Costigan about the nonpartisan character of the Culbertson papers. He said there was an understanding among the three of them—Culbertson, Costigan and Lewis—that eventually the full story of their experiences on the Tariff Commission must be given to the public. The only question concerned the appropriate time for making the disclosure.

Culbertson, he said, was impatient to get the story out. He wanted to use the newspapers for that purpose, while Costigan and Lewis preferred to wait for an official investigation.

"Why," he said, "this investigation is more Mr. Culbertson's than Mr. Costigan's. It was Culbertson who got me to make a memorandum concerning my interview with the President in September, 1924. I wrote down my experiences at the direct suggestion of Mr. Culbertson."

Lewis said that he wanted to take a full share of the responsibility for production of the Bucharest letter. He said he was interested in the public interest. To have remained silent in the face of Mr. Culbertson's attack on his earlier position and his former associates, in my judgment, would have been equivalent to acting as an accessory to the violation of the law.

McConico appeared instead of Attorney-General Frank M. Thompson, who is ill.

77 POLITICAL PRISONERS IN U.S.

NEW YORK, June 1.—California is the worst state in the Union for civil liberty, says the annual report of the American Civil Liberties Union. The report says 71 of the 77 political prisoners in America are held in California, five in Washington and one in Kansas.

Outside of California West Virginia has been the scene of more violations of civil rights than any other state, the report continues. The latter charge is based on the conflicts between coal miners and their employers.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS CATTLE DIPPING BY U. S.

Dismisses Defense of Invasion of States' Rights Made by Georgians.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Federal authorities have power to enforce cattle dipping in the various states for eradication of the Texas fever tick.

The Supreme Court so decided today in a celebrated case, involving a challenge of Federal authority in Georgia, where it was contended that the rights of the states were being invaded by Federal agents.

The Federal Government told the Court that an armed insurrection existed in Echols County, Ga., where employees of the Bureau of Animal Industry had been sent to assist local authorities in enforcing laws for the dipping of cattle. The dipping was being dynamited and spraying pens burned, and upon armed resistance the Federal representatives proceeded against Oscar Thornton and others and obtained their conviction.

The jurisdiction of the Federal Government to act was challenged on the ground that the cattle in question were not in interstate commerce.

HOUSE VOTE TOMORROW SOUGHT ON FRENCH DEBT SETTLEMENT

Attempt to Force Final Action Today Is Blocked by Opposition.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The French debt settlement was taken up by the House today with leaders prepared to press for a final vote before adjournment tomorrow.

The agreement involving $6,847,674,000 in principal and interest, and second only in size to that negotiated with Great Britain, proposes funding of the amount over a 62-year period. Initial payments of $30,000,000 annually for the first two years are gradually increased thereafter.

Chairman Green, of the Ways and Means Committee, in charge of the settlement, sought an agreement to vote today, but this was blocked by Representative Collier (Dem.) of Mississippi, who heads the opposition to the proposal.

BORAH'S SPEECH MAKES HIM CHIEF LEADER OF DRYS

If It Results in His Nomination for Presidency Against Reed, There Will Be a Warm Campaign.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Presidential aspirations work differently on different men. As has been pointed out in this correspondence, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the leader of the Democrats in the Senate, a potential candidate for the presidency, has espoused the idea of a referendum on prohibition, because he would like to see that troublesome issue taken out of politics.

Now comes Senator Borah of Idaho with a withering anti-referendum speech, a speech as dry and as uncompromising as the most ardent prohibitionist could desire.

It is commonly accepted in Washington that Senator Borah is ambitious to become President. That desire on his part, in view of his great ability and the esteem which he has widely inspired, is accounted quite natural and justifiable.

Borah's caution in this session of the Senate, exemplified by his failure to make the most of his opportunities during the revenue bill debate, has been put down, rightly or wrongly, to the timidity which often besets candidates.

Borah and La Follette. That may not be a fair estimate of Senator Borah. Indeed, it may seem to have been completely refuted by his Baltimore speech of Sunday, before the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, in which he came out boldly both as a personal prohibitionist and as an upholder of the eighteenth amendment against attempts at "nullification."

But the boldness of Borah on this occasion does not offer a real contrast with what has been, for him, a shrinking attitude on other issues. He has been taciturn, it seems to him, a moral issue, whereas the questions which have let him comparatively cold are economic issues.

Herein lies the difference between the progressivism of Borah and the conservatism of La Follette. The two brands are not so much points as in their common defense of free speech and free press, but diverge widely at others.

The cardinal difference is in the relative importance attached to economic issues. La Follette always made these paramount. He was remarkably successful in relating the efforts of his opponents to divide his followers on the wet and dry issue.

Borah, to adapt a metaphor that someone has applied to him, doesn't "strike 12" in his support of the liberal philosophy as La Follette understood it. He is now going completely outside that philosophy by setting up an issue that cuts almost not merely party lines, but the more significant lines that divide conservatives from progressives.

Outstanding Dry Leader. It is not intended here to criticize Borah for doing this. Perhaps La Follette, had he lived, would have been compelled in the present state of public opinion to accept prohibition as a major issue.

The theory is defensible that prohibition has got to be settled one way or another before any other issue can be intelligently dealt with, on its merits.

All this is more or less academic. The practical point is that Borah, by his recent utterances in the Senate and by his Baltimore speech, has made himself outstanding leader of the dry cause. Whatever the intent, that is the effect of his militant stand against the referendum proposals.

No one approaching him in influence has taken such a positive and outspoken attitude. The most that Mr. Coolidge has done on the dry side has been to call for law enforcement and to characterize the Volstead act, in his last budget message, as "a dry law."

He has never expressed himself on the intrinsic merits or demerits of the eighteenth amendment.

Above everything else, Borah is a constitutionalist. Through his official acts there has been, according to his view, a threat of consistency which ties them all to his belief in the sacredness of the Constitution. One of the offshoots of this belief is his advocacy of state rights. He voted against the

BORAH TO MAKE FIGHT ON REFERENDUM

To Speak on Own Responsibility — Thinks None Will Care to Sponsor Him.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, intends to follow up his campaign against prohibition referendums in the states, but he said today he would do so on his own initiative and on his own responsibility.

Orville S. Poland, counsel for the Antislavery League in New York, has announced that the Senator would be asked to visit that state and campaign for the drys against Senator Wadsworth, a Republican, who seeks re-election.

"I have received no invitation from the Antislavery League to speak in New York or elsewhere," Borah said. "I cannot deal with invitations until they come."

On Own Initiative. "I have my own views about this matter, and on my own initiative and on my own responsibility I shall as occasions arise present those views."

"After Congress adjourns there are several matters that will bear discussion before the people, and I doubt very much if any organization will want to become responsible for my views on the different questions."

Borah would not elaborate upon his declaration at Baltimore that referendums were sought so that candidates for office need not announce themselves on the wet and dry issue. He reiterated, however, that he did not believe the people would permit those seeking office to sidestep the question.

Playing Politics Edwards Charges. Borah was accused today by Senator Edwards (Dem.) of New Jersey, a wet leader, of playing politics in his Baltimore speech.

"The cry has gone all over the country that prohibition should be taken out of politics," Edwards said. "But the lure of the White House is so great, and the open season for presidential candidates is clouded with so many aspiring faces in search of the Coolidge mantle, that prohibition must, perforce, be used as enticing bait to catch the wary."

"The drys say that prohibition is not an issue, cannot be an issue and that it is criminal to speak of modification and yet they are importing the usually discreet and tolerant Mr. Borah to champion prohibition, and make doubly sure that prohibition will be the unescapable and outstanding issue in 1928."

Edwards expressed the opinion that "the State of New York has as much right to authorize a referendum on the politics," Edwards said. "Mr. Borah to his seat in the United States Senate."

Italy is completing the reconstruction of two Italian-built torpedo boat destroyers for Rumania.

IGNATZ MOSCICKI, CHEMIST, ELECTED POLISH PRESIDENT

He Was Pilsudski's Choice for Position — Has Been Professor and Organizer of Fertilizer Factories.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Poland, June 1.—Prof. Ignatz Moscicki is the new president of Poland. He was elected by the National Assembly today to succeed President Wojciechowski, who resigned following the military coup led by Marshal Pilsudski.

The election came on the second ballot today. Prof. Moscicki received 281 votes against 200 for Count Bismarck, candidate of the Right Parties, and one for M. Marek, Socialist. Sixty-three ballots were blank. Seven parliamentarians were absent, which meant that 274 votes were necessary for election.

Deduction of the 63 blank votes from the total of 545, however, meant the lowering of the majority necessary to elect. Most of the blanks were cast by the Pans (Peasants), National Workers, Slav and White Russian parties. These parties, therefore, indirectly helped to elect Prof. Moscicki, or at least to increase his constitutional majority.

Pilsudski Declined Post. Marshal Pilsudski was elected by the Assembly yesterday, but declined the post because he said the constitution did not protect the chief executive against Parliament by giving him power to dissolve the legislative body in case of urgent necessity. Prof. Moscicki was his choice for the place.

Prof. Moscicki was born in 1867. He studied chemistry in Riga University, where he was made director of a time was professor of electrochemistry and electro-physics in Swiss universities.

Later he organized large factories for the manufacture of synthetic fertilizers according to his own patent. After the Upper Silesian plebiscite he was made director of the fertilizer works at Chorzow, Poland. When The Hague tribunal returned Chorzow to Germany he was appointed a professor in Lemberg University.

Although Pilsudski has continued to be erratic, accomplishing his friends to expect anything from him, his refusal to accept the presidency caused general consternation. Even his closest friends were ignorant of his intention.

Marshal Pilsudski explained his position as follows: "The Constitution as it stands hampers me. I cannot work under it. I do not wish to be a mere figurehead. If you need more representation choose a man like Moscicki, who is a scholar and a man of contemplation. I am of a fighting nature."

Socialists Switched. After going through the motion of a protest vote by supporting M. Marek on the first ballot, the Socialists swung over to Prof. Moscicki on the second. Declaration of his election was received without demonstration by the Assembly.

Prof. Moscicki appeared in the Parliament building during the voting, but withdrew when he saw the way the balloting was going.

In authoritative circles it is said that the President will request Premier Charles Bartel to form a new Cabinet. The personnel of the ministry is expected to remain about as at present. Pilsudski, it is believed, will continue as War Minister.

The action of the Assembly was regarded as in line with the attitude of the people, who in demonstrations last night, following Pilsudski's declaration of the presidency, declared: "Whatever the old man does is right."

Pilsudski the Real Ruler. The view in the parliamentary lobbies is that Moscicki's presidency will prove only provisional. As soon as the Constitution is amended to give the President increased power, they say, Moscicki will resign in favor of Pilsudski. At any event, the declaration is made that Pilsudski will be the power behind the throne.

Moscicki's name in Polish means "bridge," and parliamentarians were heard after the election expressing the hope that he would prove a bridge between the Right and Left parties.

Prof. Moscicki this afternoon accepted the presidency. After his entrance into office on Friday, Parliament is expected to adjourn until fall.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A New Party to Back the Constitution.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR splendid editorial of the issue of May 24th under the caption of "The Overhanging Issue" I think hits the nail head. Though not a drinking man, I am not a prohibitionist. Since the law became a part of the Constitution, I have bought only one pint of whisky by doctor's prescription of other wise. The whisky cost $4.25 for the prescription and $3 for the doctor's permit. This is at the rate of $48 per gallon but the whisky been proof; but as it proved to be half water it raises the per gallon price to $96, for a quality that cost not over 25 cents to make, free of tax. Rather a large profit for such medicine. Such profit promotes law violation.

I believe the dispensary system is the best solution of the problem, though I will continue to respect the Constitutional Amendment so long as it exists. Much can be said, but I will not trench too much upon your time and space. I would, however, like to see a new political party formed and named the Liberal or Constitutional party. It could and should stand squarely upon the Constitution; and it seems to me that the best men of the two old parties could join it and loyally support it without hesitation or regret for leaving the party of their former affiliation. Both old parties have honorable traditions, but the progress of American civilization demands a new party that will give the Goddess of Liberty a new white robe of purity, free of the blemishes such as I feel have been caused by mistakes of the two old parties which tend to circumscribe the liberties granted by the Constitution as originally intended by the forefathers. It is needless to say that the thirteen original colonies would not have accepted the Constitution had it contained a prohibition clause.

Anti-Strike Legislation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH the signing of the Watson-Parker railroad bill by the President, the Railroad Labor Board passed out of existence. Good-bye to another effort to outlaw strikes. The law under which the Railroad Labor Board was created was designed, its sponsors said, to put an end to strikes in the railroad industry. But as a result of this board, we had the first national railroad strike in history.

Anti-strike legislation failed miserably in Kansas, and the Industrial Court has been cast upon the junk heap of failure. Kansas had more strikes, unrest and turmoil during the activity of the anti-strike court than during any other period in that State's history.

Every effort to chain men and women to their jobs, without a voice in determining the price at which they sell their labor, is doomed to failure before that effort is made. Legislation to make strikes unlawful will never prevent them.

Working people do not engage in strikes for pastime sport. But the strike is a reserve power which labor never will surrender. So long as a few industrial captains hold the positions of job owners and those who work for a living are job seekers, that long will the job seekers hold fast to the strike as a means of self-protection and defense against the job owners, who hold the power to give and take those jobs at will.

MARTIN A. DILLMON.

The General Good.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THERE used to be a fellow in Illinois who could neither read nor write, and yet generally was "reading." One day a friend noticed him perusing a paper that was upside down. He said to him: "What's the news?" They are having a hell of a time in Chicago, was the reply. That kind of a time is pretty general nowadays—except to super people. But no government or form of society should be founded upon the strength of supermen or women (who are few), but upon the weakness of the whole mass—the general good.

SIDNEY AVERILL.

Powers of the President.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT MUST amaze the colored people who read the chief executive's Mr. Coolidge's order which authorizes the appointment of state, county and municipal officers as Federal prohibition agents and thus makes a sweeping Federal incursion into local self-government, to infer that the prohibition act is more sacred than the taking of human life by lawless mobs without due process of law as in the case of Henry Patterson, colored, of La Belle, Fla., the 19th inst., accused of an attempted attack on the 11-year-old white girl. The colored people are in wonderment by the President's edict, for if he finds constitutional justification in the authority to act in the case of prohibition violation, he must be constitutionally justified in the cases of mob law, which are more menacing to civilization than any prohibition violation.

JESSE J. CROW.

MR. BORAH'S BLIND SIDE.

Senator Borah has come out squarely for the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. He has announced himself personally a militant dry. He abhors liquor in any form as a curse. That is the substance of his address to the Presbyterian General Assembly in Baltimore.

This speech has aroused political speculation. Mr. Borah's name has been included in the list of aspirants for the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1928. Is he taking advantage of the present situation, when prohibition is confessedly in the doldrums, to make himself the leader of this fading cause and with the force of its adherents, together with his personal following, to muster what may well prove to be decisive support? Those questions are being asked in Washington, which sees all things through political glasses.

The Post-Dispatch believes Mr. Borah wholly sincere in the stand he has taken. True, he may not be unimpaired of the political advantage to accrue to him, but in his long, distinguished, almost unique career Mr. Borah, so far as we know, has always had the courage of his convictions. Certainly he has never cultivated the powers that be in his own party. As a matter of fact he has persistently flouted those powers. He has not played the game at all according to the politician's code. He has been a strange, lonely figure—a hermit, so to speak, amidst the clamor and glare of Washington.

It can and will be said, of course, that through all the tumult and shouting of prohibition this is the first time that Mr. Borah has declared himself unequivocally on the question. It may be argued that, from the standpoint of the politician, this is probably the psychological moment for a man with the presidential bee to do just as Mr. Borah has done. Those who so regard his espousal of the dry creed in these circumstances may plausibly and logically press the point. But his years of independence, of defiance of political convention, of intellectual integrity, entitle him, in our opinion, to the esteem and respect accorded sincerity.

It is impossible, however, to reconcile this position of Mr. Borah's with his profound knowledge of constitutional government and the forbidding history of sumptuary legislation, with its inevitable tyrannies and usurpations. It is impossible to reconcile this position of his with his general philosophy and his specific acts.

Appropos the latter, only a few months ago—Dec. 14, to be exact—Mr. Borah introduced a bill designed to protect the constitutional rights of American citizens against official lawlessness. This bill provided against the search of homes without search warrants, against the unlawful seizure of documents, books and papers, against the breaking up of meetings and the intimidation by Federal officers of persons who advocate amendments to the Constitution. It provided a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment for five years for any Federal agent guilty of such offense.

This measure was and is approved by the liberal sentiment of the American people. It is anathema to the forces of intolerance which yesterday read Mr. Borah's speech and welcomed him into the fold as one of their very own. The Borah bill of last December could consistently have been sponsored by the most vehement anti-prohibitionist in the Senate or House. The Borah Baltimore speech could consistently have been delivered by the most rabid fanatic in the gloomy tabernacle of thousand-ton.

Whether the eighteenth amendment ever can be enforced, as Mr. Borah demands, without nullifying several other amendments, is at least debatable. No such enforcement is possible in the present state of public sentiment. That the Constitution is being nullified today is undeniable. Prohibition, as far as its votaries dare, is nullifying the bill of rights. The people who are still drinking liquor as a beverage are nullifying the eighteenth amendment. Which body of nullificationists will ultimately win is a problem which all thoughtful citizens view with anxiety—sometimes with despair.

Assuming from his record that Mr. Borah is not guilty of demagoguery, the Senator from Idaho has revealed an amazing misunderstanding of the fundamental principles underlying American institutions. He just does not apprehend the spirit of our Constitution. His Baltimore speech is as sounding brass and tinkling cymbal. There is a blind side to Senator Borah's statesmanship.

THE LOST LILY.

They are going forth in search of the lost yellow lily. St. Louis will be represented in the enterprise by Dr. David H. Linder, fungus expert at Shaw's Garden and teacher of botany in Washington University.

The expedition is sponsored by the Harvard Institute of Tropical Biology and Medicine. It will be led by Dr. Strong, a specialist of distinction in tropical diseases.

It is an exploring party, with all the equipment and personnel of true adventure. Three hundred strong they will penetrate into the depths of darkest Africa, an educational crusade, braving all the perils of far journeying. Yet all they seek is knowledge—the secrets of strange flora, the efficacy of certain drugs in combating regional diseases on savage bodies. And the lost lily.

For 10 years Shaw's Garden has been trying to find this lily, of which there is but one known specimen, a dried "mummy," so to speak, in the Berlin herbarium. It is wanted for hybridization in furthering the great work of propagation which the garden has already done.

And that is science. The term itself is, or used to be, bookish. It connoted spectacled hunchbacks bent over weighty tomes or pottering with tubes and jars in laboratories. That notion, though fairly well dissipated, still persists. How grotesquely wrong it is. Science today is dynamic, dramatic, red-blooded, magnificent. It is, in a sense, the dominant poetic note of the twentieth century's scale. It is the compelling motif. It is the heritage bequeathed us by the master minds and master spirits of the ages.

Science embroilers what might have been a prosaic period with epics and lyrics. It inspires Odysseys. So long as the banner of science waves there will be lost lands to discover, new poles to be found, holy grails to be retrieved.

The search for this lost lily is the symbol of man's indomitable climb up the Everest of knowledge.

On the dry question, it looks as though the Senator from Idaho has become a borah from within.

THE ROCKY ROAD TO CLAYTON.

That stretch of the Clayton road lying between Big Bend boulevard and North and South road threatens to become a permanent and irritating monument to county misgovernment. It was torn up 14 months ago to permit the laying of a city water main. Some time later, in a burst of energy, the county filled the ditch, but left the surface of the road in such condition that travel over it is a desperate trial of nerves, automobile springs and patience. So it remains, and seems destined to remain until that dim and shadowy time referred to by Highway Engineer Jablonsky when he said: "We're going to put it back in shape as it used to be when we get around to it."

Altogether the city has paid the county the sum of $40,000 to cover the cost of restoring the road. This sum was put in the county's road-tax fund, which now contains exactly $200 and has outstanding against it nearly $30,000 in warrants. The first payment was $25,000, which, the county claimed, was a condemnation fee, and did not relieve the city of the duty of repaving the road. This led to a dispute which was finally settled when, at the suggestion of the Post-Dispatch, city and county officials entered into a conference resulting in the payment of an additional $15,000. It was agreed that the county should take over the work and that the city should be relieved of all further obligation.

When, last March, property owners complained that the road was all but impassable, they were told that $17,481 had been spent in repairs, and that they might expect an asphalt pavement soon. In the meantime, the remainder of the money which the city paid to the county for this specific purpose has melted away, having been used for other purposes, and the asphalt pavement is not yet.

The property owner and the motorist are simply out of luck. They must endure the shell craters and the mountainous terrain of one of the principal exits to the county until the powers that manage county affairs "get around" to its improvement. But it is a valuable object lesson of the manner in which county business is handled, and of the necessity of reshaping county government along efficient and businesslike lines.

BERNADOTTE.

There is nothing about the personality of Gustavus Adolphus, Swedish Crown Prince, now visiting this country, to suggest the Bonaparte tradition. Seemingly, he is simply a mild and properly humble son of a constitutional monarch. Yet Gustavus Adolphus is the great-grandson of that fiery swashbuckler, Jean Baptiste Jules Bernadotte, who founded the only Napoleonic dynasty to survive the wreck of 1815.

It was in 1810 that Bernadotte assumed the heir-apparatus to the throne of Sweden as Prince Charles John. He had married a sister-in-law of Joseph Bonaparte. He had played a notable part in the battles of Newulid, Austerlitz and Wagram. From the rank of a private he became a Marshal of France and Prince of Ponte-Corvo, and, finally, through Napoleon's influence, successor to Charles XIII of Sweden.

Once he had assumed the title of Prince Charles John, Bernadotte ceased to be a Frenchman. Two years later he broke with Napoleon as a result of the Emperor's blockade of Continental ports—a measure detrimental to Swedish interests—and threw Sweden into the coalition against his former lord and superior. Leipzig saw Prince Charles John in the field against the eagles of France, and he contributed greatly to the allied victory on that occasion.

In 1818 Bernadotte became King of Sweden. Although he never spoke the language of his subjects, he was immensely popular. Under his reign Sweden, flourished, much progress was made in agriculture and in commerce, and the Bernadotte dynasty became secure.

Unlike the other Kings that Napoleon created, Bernadotte refused to be a puppet. His attitude toward Napoleon has been called traitorous; in Sweden he was hailed as a patriot.

WOMEN VOTERS AT ODDS.

The action of the Committee of Presidents barring the representatives of the United States National Woman's Party from the women's suffrage convention in Paris doubtless will meet with almost universal approval in women's suffrage circles in this country.

The opposition to the Woman's Party in Paris was merely the opposition which the League of Women Voters in this country carried with them across the ocean. This difference of opinion, basically, lies in that the Woman's Party contends for absolute equality for women in the eyes of the law. The mother, or the expectant mother, in a divorce suit or a divorce settlement would be accorded no privileges that the father might not claim. Women in industry would have no advantages in protective laws as to hours of employment or in any other matter under the demands for equality made by the Woman's Party.

The Woman's Party has made a great showing in its existence, although its membership has consisted of little more than the band of able workers which it maintained in Washington. Their capacity for influencing members of Congress and their ability for obtaining newspaper accounts of their activities have been marvelous. Happily, they have never lacked for munitions of war, since the treasure chest supplied by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has always been at their command. Most workers in the welfare of women in this country will find little to regret for their turn-down in Paris.

Aunt Marthy Tutt has lived on top of Gingsang Mountain since the war between the States. Never was no road to her house. She's got cows and chickens, and a sang patch.

And she allers made the best corn liquor hercabouts. The sheriff, he gits his'n thar. Lows he ain't afraid of Red Devil Lye is hern.

Once a yar she comes and helps quilt. She's got a book she keeps wropped up titled Lena Rivers by Mary J. Holmes. She wants him read whilst she quilts—she can't read.

And she don't want nothin' else read. Viney lows how she knows hit by heart. Tothar day it war rainy and chill and I brung my harness in the room ter mend.

I've got Leny in spots fer fifteen yars, but couldn't connect hit up, somehow. But Viney had alidged on her a piece, "Farm Life."

Hit was about the life bein' so nice and innocent, and kep' a-sayin, "Rec-Lax! Rec-lax!"

Aunt Marthy wuz looking weary. She looked up from the quiltin' frame and took snuff and spit— She hits the fireplace good as a man. She says, "Viney, fer Gawd's sake whut is that rec-lax and how do you do hit?" Viney says, "hit's ter kep' peace-ful."

He means ter leave the strain o' the cruel City. "Shucks!" says Aunt Marthy, and misses the fireplace.

Just time I ever see her. She says, "That's a farm fool piece. That man's got a farm ter sell. Not speakin' o' hoein' cawn and cotton, does he low we gits a rec-lax uten watchin' a chick like a yalla puff-ball lift a peach blow."

ELEANOR D. RISELEY.

Henry Ford thinks most business unscientific and so bound by tradition that it cannot properly function. To prove it, he is ranging into other industries than his own and showing how easy it is to improve them. A good many people think Henry can do this because he has the money to do it, but we doubt if that has much to do with it. We have not forgotten that when Henry was running a bicycle repair shop on North Grand avenue, in St. Louis, he felt this way about the transportation business. He did not have any money, but what he did about that is the eighth wonder of the world.

Sir: As a peaceably disposed individual who abhors the hurry-bury of strife and heartily as the elder Weiler detested the dry-wet and wet-dry Mr. Stiggins—as one especially distressed at any indications of a disturbance of that atmosphere of amity and good will which normally prevails in Just a Minute circles—the writer, views with honest-to-goodness alarm the mutual recriminations recently exchanged in your columns between two of your seasoned veterans, wringing-wet About Ben Adhem and dry-as-dust O. S. It is indeed a sad, regrettable thing, this grievous spectacle of our two friends battering away at each other, with neither ready nor willing to cry "Hold, enough!"

Something really should be done to put a stop to it. Permit me to suggest that if no other plan for a cessation of hostilities be feasible, and as desperate conditions require desperate remedies, these two combatants should be asked to submit themselves to an operation such as that described by our old friend, Lemuel Gulliver, whereby the leaders of antagonistic political parties in the pleasant land of Lagoda were effectually and permanently reconciled to each other's views.

It seems thing can be done, why not give it a whirl in the case of our friends About and O. S.? We might then have the pleasure of beholding them both drinking out of the same stein—which says nothing whatever as to the contents of the stein.

I. W. S.

The more we see of the weather the more we are convinced that the present management should be deposed. The weather is one of our chief public utilities. Let us compare it with the average public utility managed by a modern corporation. You can take a railroad train at a given hour and keep an appointment in a distant city. You can turn the lights on your house by pressing a button. The telephone puts us within easy communication the world around. Gas is available for cooking and all the necessities of life are thrust at us upon no harder condition than that we are able to command them. Not so the weather. It has become a conversational topic because of its uncertainty. Though we need it for crops, it is never better than willy-nilly. The people of Kansas are compelled to pray for it. Rainmakers fatten upon those parts of the country afflicted by drought. Is there any sense in that? None that we can discover. Would it not be better to have the weather handled as the Rockefeller handle their business? It would. We would know then what to expect—that is exactly the weather we need at a huge profit to the management. As it is, we both lose money.

"Do you ever go over to Fairmount and see the horses?" "No, you can still see one occasionally out in the country."

"Did you read about Mr. Bok founding a chair of expression at Princeton?" "Yes, I knew there would be a revolt sometime against saying it with flowers."

"When is the rainy season in St. Louis?" "During the municipal opera."

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

PRESERVING MISSOURI HISTORY

From the Kansas City Star.

MISSOURI stands indebted to the daughters of the American Revolution for restoration of the historic old Arrow Rock, which now, completely finished, has been opened to the public. This old town has become the possession of the State and its maintenance, with all the relics that have been collected and within it, is assured. Having stood for nearly a century, this structure has been about itself many historical associations of this State. Within its walls have been housed men and women notable only in the building of Missouri, the varied phases of national life as well as the names of the famous. Boone, Kit Carson, the Marmaduke, the P. Jackson, Washington Irving, numerous others. An hour or two spent in this old town will carry back the woman or child of today into the sphere and records of the past, afford glimpses into the characters, deeds and lives of the generations that have founded the State as it is today. Entertainment instruction and inspiration will be afforded the thousands who in the years ahead thus step even momentarily, from the busy life of the present. Within but a few hours by motor car from Kansas City, St. Louis and many other points in the State, the new Arrow Rock will be an inviting recreation for those who go out for a day's recreation.

What has been the preservation of other things has been the State's history. The Arrow Rock, a part, and no small part, in making of the West and of the nation. The present generation and generations of the future should know of its contribution. For that knowledge is in the building of a still greater Missouri. This State is in the hands of the people. The Arrow Rock, a part, and no small part, in making of the West and of the nation. The present generation and generations of the future should know of its contribution. For that knowledge is in the building of a still greater Missouri. This State is in the hands of the people.

THE NEW PHILADELPHIA.

From the Lewiston Journal.

PHILADELPHIA may be generally upon as slow, but frequently it is to the front with something new. A few weeks ago announcement was made of traction line wages in the city was determined by the market basket, and comes operated by the street railway made the coming summer. This is a first combination of such transportation service in an American city, as shown a recent survey made by the Philadelphia Traction Co. The chairman of the city's board of directors, arguing the case of the trial, held that if the street car business is to survive, co-ordination of cable and motor buses with the railway facilities is necessary. Under authority granted by the City Council, the approval of many citizens, the company's equipment. The traction company will have a virtual monopoly of transportation, for it already operates surface and elevated lines and motor buses. The experiment this summer, be of value to every city in the country as to Philadelphia, for it will show whether a monopoly of transportation can give the best service and the public.

EVEN the elements conspired to light opera's conversion to the happy ending last night when the Municipal Theatre's production of Victor Herbert's "Eileen" at the open-air auditorium in Forest Park. For the first time in the history of the city, a rain, followed by an overcast, did not overtake the performance, and the audience, which was estimated at 10,000, was not disappointed.

By happy coincidence, the house contained several rows of seats which the audience promptly occupied to the menace of the rain. The production of the play, which had been a success at the Municipal Theatre, was a triumph. The performance was a success, and the audience, which was estimated at 10,000, was not disappointed.

Opening Night Record.
The audience itself was a triumph and imposing spectacle. From the top of the theatre, a stream of faces rolled down the stage. It was announced that the attendance was in the neighborhood of 9000—a record for any opening night since the inauguration of the enterprise. The performance was a success, and the audience, which was estimated at 10,000, was not disappointed.

Before and After.
The spiritual advance has been quite as revolutionary. In an opening night was a series of mishaps and fumbles, which were a joke rather than a tragedy. Last night's production was as sweetly as a high-parade on a California highway. The early days the scenery consisted of "flats," which were always in the more artistic in the hands of the native land. The production was a success, and the audience, which was estimated at 10,000, was not disappointed.

Of the 20-odd works of Victor Herbert, "Eileen" is not the best, but it was the one closest to heart. It fulfilled his lifelong ambition to dedicate a tribute to his native land. While the production was a success, the audience, which was estimated at 10,000, was not disappointed.

Summer Opera Season Is Opened With 'Eileen'; 9000 in the Audience

Director Kroll Leads Victor Herbert Score
From Memory — Four Newcomers in Cast Prove Acquisitions of Merit.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

YES the elements succumbed to the happy ending last night when the Municipal Theater Association began its eighth season with a production of Victor Herbert's "Eileen" at the open-air auditorium in Forest Park. For second night there was a bluster of rain, followed by an onset of wind that overthrew properties on the stage, and set the orchestra musicians to snatching at fugitive notes.

By happy coincidence, the director, Victor Herbert, who had been in the audience, promptly appeared to the rescue, and the performance ended without casualties.

Opening Night Record.

The audience itself was a triumph and imposing spectacle. From the top of the theater an estimate of faces rolled down upon the stage. It was announced that the attendance was in the neighborhood of 9000—a record in numbers and box-office receipts for any opening night since the inauguration of the enterprise.

Turning back to the same scene seven years ago, with its bare boards for auditorium and turf for stage, one could not but be impressed by the physical growth of this plant, due to an undertaking which has not merely been self-supporting, but has earned large sums for investment in progressive building. The trophies of success are visible in far-ranging peripatetic, capable of sheltering 9,000 people; in concrete ramps and hundreds of tiers of seats, a boarded stage, lighting towers and a cluster of studios and dressing rooms. Only the twin and giant oaks, and their attendant group of smaller trees, remain unchanged.

Before and After.

The spiritual advance has been quite as revolutionary. In 1919 an opening night was a series of mishaps and fumbles, which were taken as a joke rather than a disgrace. Last night's production passed as a high-priced, well-run, California highway. In the early days the scenery consisted of "flats," which were already in the more artistic indoor theaters, and were particularly noticeable in an open-air playhouse. For "Eileen" were erected walls and arches. Similar progress could be noted in lighting, costumes, stage management and orchestra. The ascent has been from amateur to professional standards.

Of the 30-odd works of Victor Herbert, "Eileen" is not the best, but it was the one closest to his heart. It fulfilled his lifelong ambition to dedicate a tribute to Ireland, his native land. Without ceasing to be the folk songs of his people, his score is saturated with the spirit of the land, the melody, gay and affecting, it is saturated with the most sparkling rhythms, and adorned with that masterful eloquence of orchestration which distinguished Herbert above all American composers for the stage.

Literary by Noted St. Louisan.

A book of amiable merit was supplied by Henry M. Blossom, one of the most successful writers for the theater to whom St. Louis has given birth. A fictitious episode is connected with the historical uprising fomented in 1789 by Wolfe Tone, in alliance with the French Directory. It is supposed that Tone's agent, Capt. O'Brien, arrives at an unnamed Irish town to prepare for the coming of the French troops; that he is saved from capture partly by his own personality and the devotion of two patriotic women, Lady Maude Estabrooke and her niece, Eileen Mulvaney, and partly by the thick wits of the English authorities; and that, after examining the man, a shrewd return, and is about to be shot when a messenger arrives with the news of the French fleet, and to announce a new Lieutenant-Governor and amnesty for all.

The new Philadelphia.

The Lewiston Journal. The Philadelphia may be generally looked upon as slow, but frequently it comes front with something new. Some time ago an announcement was made that the city would be transformed by the market basket, and now a word that the experiment of transportation by the street railway is to be the coming summer. This is the combination of such transportation in an American city, as shown in a recent survey made by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. The chairman of the board of directors, arguing in favor of the street railway, held that if the street railway was to survive, co-ordination of transportation and motor busses with the regulation of the city is necessary. Under the plan, the city council, with the approval of many citizens, the company will take over the leading lines of the city's equipment. The traction company will have a virtual monopoly of transportation, for it already operates subways and elevated lines and most of the city's equipment. The experiment this summer will value in every city in the country as to Philadelphia, for it will give a monopoly of transportation in a city which has the best service and attention.

debut at the conductor's stand, and led the score from memory. Charles Sinclair, who was stage director in 1920, returns to that post this summer, and signaled his advent with a skillful and handsome production.

There were four newcomers in the cast—Robinson Newbold, first comedian, as Sir "Reggie" Stribling, an English baronet of low cephalic index; Edward Mollitor, tenor, as Capt. O'Day; Miss Maude Gray, soprano, as Roxie Flynn; and Miss Irene Dunne, also a soprano, as Lady Maude.

Mr. Newbold's clever drolleries and dry, refined humor gave the impression that he will prove a valuable acquisition, though his interpolated monologue and song in the third act had nothing to do with the action, and were not highly amusing in themselves. Miss Dunne also won the interest of the audience with her comely presence and roughish blandishments. Miss Gray was demure and arch, and danced gracefully.

Miss Dorothy Maynard, returning as prima donna, was her sparkling and coquettish self. But the feeling would not down that the association, with three sopranos, still lacks a genuine singing prima donna, adequate to the heroic accents of the theater. The voice of personality of Miss Grayne d'Arle were perceptibly missed.

Chorus Also a Ballet.

Mr. Mollitor, with an expressive, melodious and trained lyric tenor, did not equal in power the expectations aroused by his performance at indoor rehearsals, and by no means effaced memories of the ringing prowess of Craig Campbell. Old favorites of the company received cordial welcomes—agile Roland Woodruff, the witty William J. McCarthy; David Andra as the sinister spy, "Humpy" Grogan; Detmar Popen as the smuggler chieftain, Shaun Dhu; stately Thomas Conkey and sportive Bernice Mershon.

The singing of the chorus lacked volume, but not its usual fresh tone and prepossessing appearance. This year every member is compelled not merely to sing but to dance; it is not only a chorus but a ballet of 96. Many of them had never performed a step when the training began four months ago, so that several extended dance numbers, including a jig for the male chorus, were much to their credit. The orchestra, composed mostly of symphony players, was admirable. In its ranks, for the first time at this theater, appeared a bass clarinet.

There will be six additional performances of "Eileen," concluding Sunday night. Next week's production will be "The Red Mill," also by Herbert and Blossom.

Sleep Walker Falls Two Floors.

woman's suffrage amendment and against the child labor amendment on the ground that the ends which they sought should be attained by State, not Federal, legislation.

Voted for Dry Amendment.
He voted for the eighteenth amendment. In seeking to justify this position, he said that most of the states wanted to be dry, but were being frustrated in their efforts by shipments of liquor from the wet states. The only way to cure this condition, he maintained, was by national legislation. It is now his position, as outlined at Baltimore, that the rights of the states cannot be carried to the point of "nullification" of the Constitution.

Consistent or otherwise, Borah is able and persuasive. As an effective talking point he has the fact that the referendum idea, whatever its merits, represents in many cases a political tramping at straws by candidates who want to duck the prohibition issue. He will not let his audience forget, either, that the referendums will have no binding effect.

There is no use for the wets to blink the realities. The dries have been placed on the defensive, and the referendums may help to keep them there. But the movement for modification of the Volstead act has a long and hard way to travel before it can hope for success. It is quite conceivable that it will run up against the nomination of William Edgar Borah of Idaho for President on a bone-dry platform. Also it is conceivable that the Democrats in that case might counter with the nomination of Gov. Smith of New York or Senator Reed of Missouri. Both have gained in strength with the growing sentiment for modification.

Mr. Coolidge can't be counted out of the race for the Republican nomination—not by a long shot—so long as he indicates a desire for another term. But if, out of deference to or fear of the sentiment against a third term, he should decide not to run, and if the Republicans should name Borah and the Democrats should name Smith or Reed on a wet platform—what a glorious, soul-satisfying fight that would be.

BORAH ASKED TO CAMPAIGN FOR DRYS

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 1.—Senator Borah of Idaho will be asked by the Antisaloon League to visit New York and campaign for the dries, prior to the coming referendum, Orville S. Poland, counsel for the league, said today.

Because of the Senator's Baltimore address, in which he attacked the claim of state's rights in the prohibition question and announced himself an ardent dry, he will be asked to campaign against Senator Wadsworth, Poland said.

REGULARLY, surely, twice yearly, "Old Faithful Institution for Savings" pays its patrons savings interest.

A Message to the Public from 20,380 Grocers

When demand for a product grows phenomenally year after year—when more thousands of new users flock to it daily and stay sold—when that product achieves a position no competitor even approaches,—then, in our opinion, that product unquestionably has merit not one housewife can well afford to ignore.

H & K COFFEE

How Consumption of H & K Coffee Has Grown

of course!

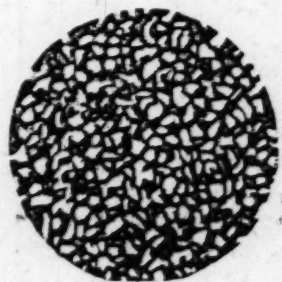

To April 30 Only

At present rate, 1926 consumption will equal H & K's Three Greatest Years—1923-24-25—Combined.

There are 3 reasons for H & K Coffee's immense popularity—and none of these reasons is price.

1 NO HOUSEWIFE expects something for nothing. Coffee in the cup can be only as good as it was in the bean. You cannot improve the flavor that is in the coffee you buy. The clever housewife knows that to serve the best, she must buy the best. Every family can afford the finest coffee—the best costs only three-fourths of a cent per day more than the ordinary kind.

2 COFFEE must be evenly ground and "purified" of uneven pieces (note illustrations). Most coffees are ground as shown in upper circle. Little pieces when put in the pot or percolator brew too quickly, too much and get bitter. The big pieces do not brew enough and consequently are wasteful. H & K Coffee (lower circle) is ground evenly and "purified." Each piece is practically the same size. The result is perfect brewing, perfect flavor and absolutely no waste.

3 COFFEE flavor comes from a delicate oil contained in the coffee bean. Air evaporates this oil and spoils it, causing most coffees to lose at least one-third of their strength and flavor before they reach you. There is one way, ONE ONLY, that guarantees coffee to reach you with all the flavor and strength you pay for. That one method is Vacuum Packing. H & K Coffee is Vacuum Packed. All the air is taken out of the can and sealed out. Your first cup of H & K will prove what a big difference this makes.

Genuine H & K Coffee is packed only in 1-pound and 3-pound vacuum cans.

Enjoy this famous flavor in YOUR home

CHURCH GETS OLD CHALICES

Iron with Cod Liver Oil Makes Weak Child Strong

New Easy-to-Take Tablet Form Helps Him Up Quickly

When your child "outgrows his strength" or is weakened by illness he should be given remedies known as "food tonics" to rebuild solid flesh and produce rich red blood. For this purpose, physicians prescribe cod liver oil and iron. Chemists now extract the vitamins and flesh-building elements from cod liver oil and throw the nasty, useless oil away. They combine these extracts with blood-building iron in easy-to-take tablet form.

To get the genuine, specify Burke's Cod Liver Oil and Iron Tablets at the drug store. You'll soon have cause to be proud of the sturdy, energetic, well-nourished condition of your youngster.

DIVORCE QUESTION BEFORE ASSEMBLY OF PRESBYTERIANS

Proposal Made to Limit Causes Recognized by Church to One—Action Deferred.

STATUS OF NEW YORK PRESBYTERY UP

Authority to License Pastor Who Did Not Affirm Belief in Virgin Birth Challenged.

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, Md., June 1.—Limitation of the causes of divorce to a single cause came before the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (Northern), for consideration today in an overture from the Presbytery of Butler. Action was deferred until tomorrow.

The issue of the church heretofore have recognized willful desertion or unfaithfulness as just causes for divorce. The Judiciary Commission will report today whether the New York Presbytery usurped its authority in licensing a minister who would not affirm his belief in the virgin birth of Christ.

Observance of the sesquicentennial of American independence also occupied a part of the day.

Dr. Clarence Macartney delivered the chief address at this observance. The fundamentalism for which he has fought during the convention came to the forefront in his address. He said: "One hundred and fifty years of Presbyterianism in the nation are worth commemorating because the Presbyterian Church of the past was a church that believed that the Bible was the Word of God and was not afraid to say so to all men."

Dr. Macartney Defeated. The report of the committee of fifteen was adopted yesterday despite objections of the Philadelphia Presbytery, voiced by Dr. Clarence Macartney.

He sought to eliminate the finding of the committee that the assembly might change its rulings in a new case. He argued that this left a perpetual doubt as to the ruling against New York Presbytery last year when the Presbytery was rebuked for admitting a minister who denied the virgin birth, and the Synod of New York cautioned for approving this.

"If you let that statement stand," Dr. Macartney said, "there is not a church in the Presbytery of New York or any other taking the same stand which will not declare the assembly said there is something about the case still open. This means we are left in confusion as to whether we have certainty of law in our court of finality concerning the doctrines of the church."

As the report stated that this question needed further deliberation, permission was asked to extend the study for one year and by the same argument Dr. Macartney requested that the work of the committee be discontinued.

Brothers on Opposite Sides. A debate followed, in which Dr. Macartney's brother, Dr. Albert Macartney of Chicago, pleaded for tolerance in consideration of the report. He at the same time opposed his brother's request for the elimination of about three pages of the document. Rev. Albert Macartney said: "Brother Clarence is all right. The only trouble with him is that he is not married. If he were, he wouldn't have so much time to worry over other people's theology." Father of O. O. McIntyre Dead. By the Associated Press. PLATTSBURGH, Mo., May 1.—Henry B. McIntyre, 71 years old, father of O. O. McIntyre, paragrapher of New York, died at his home here last night of heart disease. Mr. McIntyre owned hotels here and in Richmond, Mo. O. O. McIntyre, who is in Paris, was notified by cablegram of his father's death.

A carbonated and sweetened beverage, prepared from the leaves of the Yerba Mate (Ilex Paraguariensis), a wonderful herb of South America, and flavored with ginger.

Rev. Dr. Zahm, C.S.C., Ph. D., companion to the late Col. Roosevelt through South America, writes: "It is the most invigorating beverage imaginable. Where Mate is used, drunkenness is practically unknown. Give a native Mate and he will run or work all day with no other food."

Egyptian Cabinet Resigns.

By the Associated Press.
ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, June 1.—
Egypt is in the throes of a ministerial crisis, the solution of which is likely to have far-reaching effects on the future of the country and its relation with British rule here. Premier Zwiar Pasha, who had been in office since 1924, has presented the resignation of his Cabinet to King Fuad, and the King requested him to remain in office to carry on routine business until a decision is reached as to whether Zwiar Pasha, the Nationalist leader, or Adly Yegen Pasha is to be called in to form a ministry.

WOMEN PHONE OPERATORS WIN MEDALS FOR HEROISM

Two Braved Robbers, One Risked Life in Flood; Two Men Also Honored.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 1.—The awarding of five silver medals by the Theodore N. Vail Memorial Committee, each carrying cash awards of $250, was announced last night. The medals are presented to members of the Bell Telephone System each year as rewards for noteworthy public service.

Two are to women operators who risked death at the hands of armed robbers to perform unusual service.

Mrs. Josephine L. August, night operator at Cassopolis, Mich., prevented the looting of the Cassopolis First National Bank. She remained at her post while the robbers set off nitroglycerin in the bank building two doors away and fired platols. Although lines to the Police and Fire Departments and to the Sheriff's home had been cut, she obtained aid from neighboring towns and caused the robbers to flee empty-handed.

With a revolver leveled at her head by a man who stood outside the window of the Washington (Ark.) telephone office, Miss Ruby La Verne Wilson, 18 years old, notified the authorities an attempt was being made to rob the local bank.

Emory Daniel Sline, lineman of York, Pa., who stood in the icy water of a racing stream to restore shattered communication. Mrs.
Mary Regina Smith of Fabens, Tex., who stuck to her switchboard until flood waters tore away the walls of the telephone exchange, and Everett C. Nelson, Niagara Falls (N. Y.) repairman, who risked his life to save a fellow workman from electrocution on the top of a 45-foot pole, were the others honored.

from Cambridge, Md., were killed and 10 others of the party were injured, six seriously, in an automobile collision near Ocean City this morning. The musicians in two machines, were returning from a first automobile and crashed heading the driver, William Green of

BEST AIR MAIL FLYING TIME MADE DURING THE WINTER

Like a Strong Wind at Their Backs; It Speeds Them Along.

By the Associated Press.
CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 1.—Air mail pilots who daily pass over the Rocky Mountains prefer to ride the wind of a strong wind. The pilot usually to finish his job as quickly as possible and a strong wind at his back, although it may produce bumps and rough flying, speeds him to his destination.

The best flying times of the Rocky Mountain division have been made in the winter. In crossing the Continental Divide from Cheyenne to Rock Springs, a distance of 253 miles, a record time of one hour and 30 minutes was made in December, 1925. During fair weather, the average flying time has been two hours and a half, with the best time only 10 to 15 minutes less.

MOVIE AUDIENCES AID IN EDITING NEW FILMS

Reviews of Plays in Crude Form Held in Local Houses
Before Completion.

By the Associated Press.
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 29.—Motion picture fans of Hollywood and Los Angeles are wielding the editor's shears on the product of one of the producing organizations here.

The theater-goers blue-pencil the pictures through a new plan of previews, which while it fails to feed the vanity of the stars, has established itself with the producing managers.

The usual form of preview is a gala occasion. Imported automobiles digorge screenland's luminaries in Paris gowns and formal dress. Favors are often distributed and the event is little less brilliant than the premiere showing. The picture is in finished form and often already in the distributing office.

Postcard Opinions.
Hector Turnbull, associate Paramount producer, has developed the new preview system whereby the picture is shown in a relatively crude state. Only enough editing is done to make it possible for the audience to follow the plot. For its first pre-view the picture may be taken to a neighborhood theater that caters to the well-to-do. The reaction of the crowd to titles, to scenes and details of the picture are noted.

Postcards are given out and the spectators asked to help in perfecting the picture.

Next it may go to a theater in the car-barn neighborhood. Detail corrections in the film have been made and in its second pre-view the reaction to the picture as a whole is observed.

Film Stars Barred.
Again the postcards are used. The last pre-view is always in a small town theater where it passes its test before a general audience.

The system has been a success. Mr. Turnbull declares. And because of the diverse sections of the United States from which the population of Hollywood and Los Angeles come, the conditions for audience editors are unusually good. In order that the audience may not be influenced, motion picture stars are not permitted to attend pre-views.

Turnbull attempts to have each picture pass its tests under conditions that it will remain when completed. The thousands of postcards received on each picture's pre-views are tabulated by clerks, since it would be impossible to consider individual suggestions.

PATE-DE-FOIE-GRAS IS POPULAR IN STRASBOURG
Delicacy Is Peddled in Baskets From Cafe to Cafe in French City.

By the Associated Press.
STRASBOURG, France, May 28. Pate-de-foie-gras, the gourmet's delight, is almost as commonplace in its home-town as ham-and-eggs in America. This delicate dish is one of the things that has made Strasbourg cooking famous, and the good Strasbourgeois eat it at meals, after meals and between meals.

Pate-de-foie-gras, washed down with a draught of the famous Alsatian beer, is a favorite tea-time dish. Innumerable old women go from cafe to cafe peddling the delicacy, slices of which are cut from a big "pate" carried in a basket. It is sold like peanuts and chocolate in America.

NEW YALE LAW SCHOOL POLICY Rules Designed to Exclude All But Superior Students.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 1.—The Yale School of Law announces the adoption of a policy of limiting numbers and of confining its efforts to training superior students. Instead of being open to all who have graduated from reputable colleges, as in the past, the school will hereafter admit only men whom it may expect to make a grade of at least C. A man who has failed in another law school will not be admitted at Yale.

In addition to making these regulations for beginners in law, the faculty has raised the requirements for students transferring from other schools. Transfer students must have a record of B or its equivalent. Another means taken to raise the standard of the school is a new requirement that every student must maintain an average of C or be dropped from the school.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO. June 1.—The Cardinals went after Tony Kaufmann in the first inning and took a lead in the game with the Cubs here this afternoon.

Manager Hornsby sent Bill Sherdel to the mound.

The game:

FIRST INNING. Cardinals—Blaine singled through Shannon. Douthit sacrificed. Kaufmann to Grimm. Hornsby singled to center, scoring Blaine. Bottomley hit a home run into the right-field bleachers, Hornsby scoring ahead of him. Bell walked. O'Farrell grounded to Shannon, who threw late to second and both runners were safe. Theriot was called out on strikes. THREE RUNS.

CHICAGO. Adams filed out to Muller. Heathcote hit a home run into the right field bleachers, a high wind helping the ball. Brooks lifted a fly to Douthit. Wilson walked. Freigau doubled along the left field foul line. Wilson stopped at third. Grimm was out. Hornsby to Bottomley. ONE RUN.

SECOND INNING. Cardinals—Piercy replaced Kaufmann for the Cubs. Adams threw out Sherdel. Blaine was called out on strikes. Douthit beat out a hit towards the infield and stole second. Hornsby was safe on Shannon's error and Douthit went to third. Bottomley filed to Heathcote. NO RUNS.

MONTREAL WILL JOIN CIRCUIT CONTROLLING EAST SIDE DOG TRACK

Eighty dogs went to the post yesterday afternoon at the East Side dog track for the opening of the Thursday night. Masked Battery from the kennel of Arch de Geer turned in the best workout. The dog has been racing during the winter. That's the business and Barfoot also made impressive showings.

Schooling will continue today and tomorrow. Yesterday's most spectators watched the dogs perform. A greyhound track for Montreal, to be a part of the circuit which controls the new East Side track, will be built for a summer meeting. O. P. Smith, inventor of the mechanical rabbit, the bogus hare, which makes the dogs run, announced today. Negotiations for the patent rights to the machinery have been closed with Joseph B. Boyle of Baltimore, who is in the city to confer with Smith, both of whom are at Hotel Jefferson.

The Montreal track will be built in the city on the grounds of the National La Crosse Athletic Association, headed by the dog promoters. Bradley Carr, Baltimore sportsman, will be in partnership with Smith in the project. They expect to begin racing July 1, as it will only be necessary to install the oval, the athletic field having a large grandstand.

Speaker Benches Himself Because Of Weak Hitting

By the Associated Press.
Cleveland, June 1.—Tris Speaker, for years one of America's greatest batters, has benched himself because of weak hitting. With him he took Charley Jamieson, for years the Indians' lead-off man. Batting in tough luck all season, Speaker gulped himself out of the game yesterday after popping up and retiring the side with the tying runs on the bases in the first game of a double-header with Chicago. Previously Speaker, manager of the Indians, had shifted his lineup, dropping himself from third place in the batting order, where he had batted for years, to fifth. He also moved Jamieson to seventh place. When the shakedown failed to break Cleveland's losing streak, Speaker put Pat McNulty in center field and replaced Jamieson with Cliff Lee in the second game. This the Indians won in 12 innings, although the substitutes failed to distinguish themselves at bat.

ATTACK ON DELANEY, COACH OF C.A.A., DROPS DEAD ON STREET

Veteran Was First Paid Coach at St. Louis U. — Known Throughout Country.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 1.—Martin Delaney, for many years athletic director of the Chicago Athletic Association, who took his athletes into many cities at home and abroad, dropped dead today on the street not far from his home on the South Side.

Delaney, known wherever the Cherry Circle athletes of the C. A. A. have matched their powers in athletics, was the manager of the new Midway Athletic Club, which is completing a tall structure for its home on the Midway Plaisance near the University of Chicago.

Martin Delaney was the first paid coach at St. Louis University. He was brought to the university in 1899 by Jack Paul and Billie Dillon, who had heard of his success as a track coach at his home, Worcester, Mass. He was an outstanding figure in Eastern track athletics and came from a family of athletes, his brother being at one time American pole vault champion.

Delaney coached football, track and baseball teams at St. Louis University and always had winning teams in the sports. His forte was track athletics and he arranged the most successful track meets ever held here, one notably in which nearly 1000 athletes participated. In 1900 he took his St. Louis U. track squad to a state meet at Columbia and the Blue and White won every event except the mile, and in that a St. Louis U. man ran second.

Delaney left St. Louis about 1902, going to the Kansas City A. C. as coach. He was so successful there at developing athletes that he was signed as coach of the Chicago A. C., later being given a position with the club as general manager. He left the C. A. C. to direct athletics and physical development for the Chicago Police Department.

Lockhart Wins Auto Derby and $40,000 Purse

Harry Hartz Second—Indianapolis Race Halted at 400 Miles.

By the Associated Press. INDIANAPOLIS, June 1.—Frank Lockhart of Los Angeles, Cal., debonair as a veteran campaigner of the bricks and pine bowls, though driving his first major engagement, won the fourth annual 50-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway yesterday.

The race was won slightly more than $40,000 to him, lap prizes and accessory trophies and purses augmenting the $20,000 first money.

He made his start in California road racing.

The race was stopped at the 175-mile mark by rain which combined with the oil spattered from 28 racing cars to make the brick oval too treacherous for safe driving.

Renewal of the downpour cut short the race at 400 miles.

Taking his second wind as the leaders neared the century post, young Lockhart forged to the front where he remained except for a momentary stop at the pits near the end of the race and he was five miles ahead of the field when the white flag sent the tiny racers from the course.

Harry Hartz won second prize of $10,000 for the third time in his competition in this race. Cliff Woodbury pulled up third, winning $6000. Others who placed were Fred Comer, fourth; Peter de Paola, fifth; Frank Elliott, sixth; Ralph Bratton, seventh; Ralph Hepburn, eighth; Phil Shafer, ninth, and John Duff, tenth.

For the visitors, scored a run in the sixth inning.

Pattin pitched a fine game, holding the Elites to six scattered hits. The fourth game of the series will be played this afternoon.

Coach Fred Spahn's Red and Blue barmen defeated Joe Wright's Penn Athletic Club eight and the Syracuse Varsity. Not more than a third of a length separated the two Philadelphia elites, with Syracuse three lengths behind. The time of 7 min. 55.1-5.2 sec. was good, considering that a strong head wind was blowing.

Last Saturday, the Pennsylvania Varsity won the Chills cup for the third straight year.

Pennsylvania's six-year reign in 150-pound elights was broken when Princeton beat the Red and Blue lightweight and a field for four other starters.

Columbia kept its season's record clean in freshmen elights, beating Penn, two and a half lengths separating the two crews at the finish. This was the third time Penn has bowed to the Glendon-coached freshman eight this spring.

Walter M. Hoover, national sculling champion, not only won in first singles but also stroked his Undine Barge Club first four sculls to a victory. Undine, entered in five events, won as many races.

By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, June 1.—Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills, Negro contender for Jack Dempsey's heavyweight title, denied today he had any knowledge of Wills being matched to box Jack Sharkey at Providence this summer.

Mullins said he is bound by contract with Tex Rickard not to negotiate for any bouts until Wills meets Dempsey. Rickard has been summoned to appear before the New York Boxing Commission tomorrow or Friday, Mullins declared.

Rickard will be asked to state whether Dempsey will meet Wills or Gene Tunney in September.

Mullins is negotiating for a match between Phil McGraw, Detroit, his lightweight, and Rocky Kansas, Buffalo, lightweight champion, here next month.

143% Increase in Sales

through Advertising in the Post-Dispatch

Brown & Hall Supply Co., St. Louis distributors recommended the Post-Dispatch for an exclusive newspaper campaign to advertise Atwater Kent Receiving Sets in The BILLIONAREA—the Greater St. Louis Market.

With the manufacturer's order for the advertising came the request that efforts be made to obtain retail dealer co-operation through the "tie-up" of local advertising.

Local dealers, all of whom are familiar with the selling power of the Post-Dispatch, responded so generously to the suggestion that the Post-Dispatch, in national competition with other great newspapers, was awarded the prize offered by Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co. to that publication which secured the most conspicuous co-operation among the local dealers in the larger cities of the United States.

The campaign closed with an increase of more than 143% in the sales of Brown & Hall—an unprecedented success in the history of their business.

First in Radio Advertising

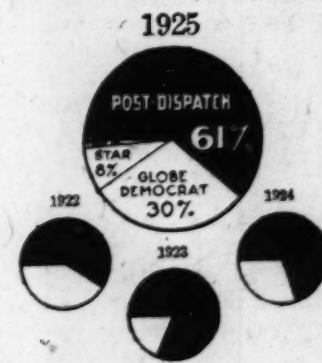

The Post-Dispatch has always been overwhelmingly first in Radio Advertising—so far ahead that this one newspaper alone carries more Radio Advertising than all three other St. Louis newspapers added together.

First With Radio Dealers

To determine the popular choice for one newspaper campaign, a recognized advertising agency sent a questionnaire to each of the 52 St. Louis Retail Radio Dealers.

Of the 49 who answered, 40 selected "one newspaper" for daily advertising—26 of them selected the Post-Dispatch as their first choice. The three other newspapers combined were selected by only 14.

Of the 42 who selected "one newspaper" for Sunday advertising—35 favored the Post-Dispatch and only 7 the second newspaper.

POST-DISPATCH

The highest ranking P+D+C newspaper, of The BILLIONAREA—the Greater St. Louis Market

Because the St. Louis Post-Dispatch has the greatest circulation in this rich area, it offers advertisers a P+D+C value almost without parallel in America. It reaches more PEOPLE with more DOLLARS with a greater COVERAGE of The Billionarea than any other newspaper. Its coverage is so complete that this one newspaper alone taps the unusual buying power of practically every home in the Greater St. Louis Market.

The fact that both local and national advertisers recognize the Post-Dispatch as the most powerful selling force in the Greater St. Louis Market is proved by its volume of advertising—almost equal to that of all other St. Louis newspapers combined.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch,
St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Sirs:

The results from the Atwater Kent advertising campaign in the Post-Dispatch have been checked and we find that our sales, over the same period of the previous year, were increased more than 143%.

The splendid cooperation of the local retail dealers, their "tie-up" copy and window displays, indicate very clearly to us that our dealers have great confidence in the sales-making influence of national advertising campaigns in the Post-Dispatch.

The suggestions and cooperation of your Merchandising Department had much to do with the unprecedented success of this campaign.

Since the Post-Dispatch was the only St. Louis newspaper used, we do not hesitate to give you full credit for the part you took in our phenomenal sales increases.

Very truly yours,
Wm. A. Brown

Dear Sirs:

In the near future you will receive an order and copy for the extra page of Atwater Kent advertising offered by the Atwater Kent Company as a prize for the publication which secured the most conspicuous cooperation among local dealers in their respective cities.

It gives us pleasure to state that the cooperation we secured from the Post-Dispatch was the best we received. This compliment becomes higher when we tell you that you were in competition with many of the other great newspapers in the country and the prize was indeed a hard one.

Please accept our congratulations on this good work.

Very truly yours,

CLUB WOMEN PLEDGED TO SUPPORT DRY LAW

Not a Dissenting Voice Against Resolution in General Federation Convention.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 1.—Uncompromising support of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act were pledged by the General Federation of Women's Clubs today. There was not a single dissenting voice against the passage of the resolution, which was adopted without discussion.

In the motion offered by Mrs. Gilbert F. Davis of Windsor, Vt., it was recited that there had been much agitation for modification of the Volstead act during the sixtieth session of Congress, and very pronounced political activity in the States. It was deemed necessary, therefore, that the General Federation should "renew its unequivocal stand taken at the Chautauqua and Los Angeles biennials."

Five Louisville delegates, voting opposition to the right of the majority of the General Federation to bind the minority, were voted down today. The minority cause mustered 11 votes for rescinding of majority rule.

The Nominating Committee submitted the names of Mrs. John D. Sherman of Estes Park, Colo., for re-election as president; Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indianapolis and Miss Florence Dillert of Johnston, Pa., for second terms as first and second vice president, respectively; Mrs. H. E. Reynolds of Kentucky for treasurer, and Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Massachusetts for recording secretary.

A "know your country" resolution, also was adopted, urging every club to include such work in its program for the coming year. It was stated that the organization views with concern the great increase in crime in the country.

In another resolution, it was decided to establish in Washington permanent legislative bureau under the federation auspices, to relieve the president of the general federation of irksome duties. It was submitted that indorsement of Federal legislative questions is annually becoming a more intensive proposition, calling for the presence of the federation president at congressional hearings. It was held necessary that the general federation in the future should guard its endorsement of proposed laws more strictly adopting the policy for one year at least, or indorsing the principle of new measures, rather than the bills in their entirety.

Rain Benefits Farmers in Vicinity of Cambridge.

CARDONDALE, Ill., June 1.—Rain which fell yesterday was general in this section and it is estimated to have benefited crops, fruits and vegetables to the extent of 1,000,000 in this county. Raising crops, pastures, gardens, lawns and vegetation generally took on new life. Corn, wheat, oats and fruit benefited most. Cisterns that had gone dry in the rural sections were replenished. The rainfall measured .66 of an inch, the most that has fallen in several weeks.

Warm, Dry Weather Needed to Save Berries Now.

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH. SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 1.—Yesterday's rain is expected to mean an immediate increase in strawberry shipments. It followed immediately by warm dry weather for several days. The berries will not ripen properly in cool, rainy weather.

MISSOURI BUYING MULE DEER OF UTAH

Game Department Will Place Them in Refuges in State Parks.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 1.—Negotiations for the purchase of 18 head of Kaibab mule deer from the State of Utah, are being made by the State Fish and Game Department. The deer will be placed in game refuges in Indian Trail State Park, near Salem, and Deer Run State Park, near Ellington.

Department officials said that the mule deer were to be placed in Missouri for the first time so far as they knew. The first of the spring crop of fawns of the Virginia (white tail) deer purchased in Michigan by the department, have begun to arrive at the State game refuges.

An unusually large number of fawns is expected in the protected areas this year, officials say.

SLAYERS OF OSAGE INDIAN TO BE TRIED IN U. S. COURT

Dismissal of Indictments Held Error by Decision of Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Holding that murder committed upon restricted Indian allotments in Oklahoma is punishable under the Federal laws, the Supreme Court today ruled that the lower courts were in error in dismissing indictments against John Ramsey and William K. Hale for the murder of Henry Roan, an Osage Indian. Roan was killed on the Osage reservation and the Federal Government contended that the Federal Courts had jurisdiction, bringing its fight to the highest tribunal after the Federal District Court for western Oklahoma had dismissed the proceedings.

Pointing out that other murders of Osage Indians had occurred which are now being investigated, the Government asserted that it was of the greatest importance to obtain a final ruling.

The Court accepted the Government's contention that it had been established that the Federal courts had jurisdiction when murder was committed on an Indian reservation after the land had been allotted in severalty when the Government retained title in trust for the Indians, and the Government insisted that the same rule applied when the allotments had been made under restrictions and other control reserved by the United States.

British Control Marconi Company.

LONDON, June 1.—At an extraordinary meeting yesterday the Marconi Telegraph Co. agreed to an alteration of its articles of association whereby the company will remain under British control and not more than 25 per cent of the issued share capital will be held under foreign control. Only the British-born will be eligible as directors or officers in the United Kingdom or the British dominions. Marconi said the reason for the alteration was that the Postmaster-General, in granting the company a license to establish services with certain continental and other foreign countries outside of Europe, made it conditional that the company continue under British control.

Mexican Migratory Law in Effect.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 1.—Mexico's new migratory law, raising the bars to admission into the Republic, went into effect today. All persons going into Mexico hereafter should first obtain an individual card of identification from the Mexican Consulate in their city, the local Consulate announced. This card will not be granted unless the applicant's nationality, station in life, moral standards, and in some cases, existence of a labor contract to work in Mexico, are satisfactorily proved.

THE PESKY BED BUG HAS A BIOGRAPHER

Eats Only Once in Ten Days, Author Says; Once Believed Snake-Bite Remedy.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—A booklet long awaited by the reading public of America is just off the press, and will be received with the keenest interest. The author is C. J. Marlatt, entomologist of the Department of Agriculture, and the title of the work is "The Bedbug." Neither a croak story nor a romance, it is, as the name implies, a biographical study of that poignant insect.

Dr. Marlatt's treatment of his subject, if not sympathetic, at least betrays a deep and sufficient knowledge of the bedbug, and a thorough understanding of its problems. While he does not condone its actions, he does explain its motives. For instance, says he, the craft, greed and deceitfulness of the bedbug are directly traceable to its long and close association with man. Here we have another illustration of the power of example.

The origin of the bedbug is lost in antiquity, and it is too bad the bedbug was not lost with it. The Romans, including Pliny, supposed it to have medicinal properties, and it was recommended as a specific for snake bite. A sturdy Roman bedbug could give the noblest Roman of them all something to think about, regardless of what else had bitten him just previously. Your correspondent is happy to report that a far more pleasant cure for snake bite has since been discovered, and is generally available, despite the Volstead act.

Has Many Allies.
Most of the names which have been applied to the bedbug throughout the ages are wholly unprintable. However, Dr. Marlatt enumerates a few of the more amiable ones current in this country. Around Boston, he notes, it is called the "chintz"; in Baltimore, "mabogany flat," while from New York comes the name "red coat," and from the Far West, "crimson ramblar." The sobriquets usually employed in St. Louis and throughout the Middle West are somewhat more Biblical in style and derivation.

"The bedbug," says the author, is to man what squash bugs are to cucurbs, from which it appears that the life of a cucurbit is not all beer and skittles, either. "Like most insects parasitic on animals," he adds, "it is degraded structurally." It is the writer's opinion that it's also degraded morally and that its politics, economic beliefs and civic spirit are not above reproach.

Its lack of wings is mildly described by Dr. Marlatt as a "fortunate circumstance," but your correspondent recalls a halled of the Afro-American folk, once popular in his native Tennessee, of which the refrain was:

"The bedbug got no wings at all,
But he git 'er just the same."
The learned man demonstrates his unconquerable optimism when he says that "the buggy odor, disagreeable as it is, is very fortunate." He bases this assertion on the theory that the bedbug's unmistakable bouquet is of great assistance in locating it. So is a skunk's, but no great scientist has yet had the hardihood to describe it as "very fortunate."

Plunging into the bedbug's psychology and emotional reflexes, the author continues:

"The bedbug is normally nocturnal in habits, and displays a certain degree of wariness and caution in its efforts at concealment during the day. Under the stress of hunger, however, it will venture forth, and has been known to attack humans voraciously in broad daylight." A Texas bedbug was reported to have made such an attack in 1913. The man shot it, and it died a few hours afterward, but no mention of this incident is made in the book.

"Extraordinary stories are current of the bedbug's intelligence in circumventing efforts to keep it away from beds," the author says, however. "Of these, undoubtedly are exaggerated, but centuries of companionship with man, in which the bedbug has always found its host an active enemy, has resulted in a knowledge of the habits of the human animal, as evidenced in the bedbug's habit of leaving beds in daytime and going to distant hiding places."

Eats Every 10 Days.
Dr. Marlatt's frequent reference to man as the bedbug's "host" is one of the most exasperating features of the work. One would suppose the bedbug had been invited to dinner. This gives a color of sociability to the meetings between man and bug which certainly have no place in reality.

The fact is, as the author himself admits, that the bedbug long ago singled out man as his own particular meat, and will have nothing else if a man is available. As further evidence that it has a hardy stomach, he relates that bedbugs have been known to go 11 months without a bite to eat or a drop to drink, and a normal bedbug seldom feeds more than once in 10 days. The remainder of the time he just sits and chuckles to himself.

The great natural enemy of the bedbug is the little red ant. Despite the enormous difference in weight, height and reach, one little red ant will take a nest of bedbugs like Grant took Richmond.

TINKHAM'S CHARGES 'LIKE FOAM OF BEER'

Wayne B. Wheeler Replies to Congressman's Criticism of Anti-Saloon League.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Bldg.
WASHINGTON, June 1.—The feud between Representative Holden Tinkham (Rep.) of Massachusetts, and Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, is on again. Congressman Tinkham's charges against the Anti-Saloon League, like the foam of beer, have little substance, declared Wheeler in response to Tinkham's announcement that he would introduce a resolution for an investigation of the payment of money by the league to members of Congress.

"The records show that the Anti-Saloon League was the only organization for years that filed reports of its political activities and expenditures," said Wheeler's statement. "The wet organizations back of Mr. Tinkham filed only in recent years, when we drove them to it, and these records have not been in full accord to the law."

Wheeler declared that his organization would comply with the new corrupt practices law. He called untrue portions of the Tinkham story.

Tinkham's hallucinations about the league spending $25,000,000 in politics in a single year is nonsense, he said. "That was the total spent for the 48 states and by the national league for all purposes in the height of the campaign for ratification. Most of it was spent for educational work. In the State of Ohio alone the referendum election cost over $250,000 a year for several years. The amount spent in political campaigns was only a small fraction of that amount."

"Of course, the Anti-Saloon League never paid any Congressman for introducing or championing a bill. Occasionally, when a prohibition, his expenses and sometimes an honorarium is paid by the organization that arranged for it. A Congressman who has ability enough so that the people want to hear him should not be estopped from this service simply because he is a public official. Vice President Marshall said he had to do this when he was Vice President."

"Equally false is the charge that the league controls the appointments to the Federal bench. We protect against such applicants who have had records on law enforcement. Such applicants are usually strongly backed by the wets."

been suspended from Cornell University for their parts in issuing objectionable publications on May 22.

The publications were the "Globe and Square Dealer" and the "Graphic." It was stated that the students were tactful and used the names of university officers in a derogatory manner.

TINKHAM'S CHARGES 'LIKE FOAM OF BEER'

Wayne B. Wheeler Replies to Congressman's Criticism of Anti-Saloon League.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 20-23 Wyatt Bldg. WASHINGTON, June 1.—The feud between Representative Holden Tinkham (Rep.), of Massachusetts, and Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, is on again.

Congressman Tinkham's charges against the Anti-Saloon League, like the foam of beer, have little substance, declared Wheeler in response to Tinkham's announcement that he would introduce a resolution for an investigation of the payment of money by the league to members of Congress.

"The records show that the Anti-Saloon League was the only organization for years that filed reports of its political activities and expenditures," said Wheeler's statement. "The wet organizations back of Mr. Tinkham filed only in recent years, when we drove them to it, and these records have not been in full accord to the law."

Wheeler declared that his organization would comply with the new corrupt practices law. He called untrue portions of the Tinkham story.

"Tinkham's hallucinations about the league spending $2,500,000 in politics in a single year is nonsense," he said. "That was the total spent for the 48 states and by the national league for all purposes in the height of the campaign for ratification. Most of it was spent for educational work. In the State of Ohio alone the referendum election cost over $250,000 a year for several years. The amount spent in political campaigns was only a small fraction of that amount."

"Of course, the Anti-Saloon League never paid any Congressman for introducing or championing a bill. Occasionally, when a Congressman makes a speech for prohibition, his expenses and sometimes an honorarium is paid by the organization that arranged for it. A Congressman who has ability enough so that the people want to hear him should not be estopped from this service simply because he is a public official. Vice President Marshall said he had to do this when he was Vice President."

"Equally false is the charge that the league controls the appointments to the Federal bench. We protest against those applicants who have had records on law enforcement. Such applicants are usually strongly backed by the wets."

Kansas City Oil Station Man Shoots Omaha Youth.

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, June 1.—Milo Lande, 17 years old, of Omaha, was shot and killed by the attendant of a filling station, while he and a companion were attempting to rob the station yesterday. The companion, Clyde Sparks, 22, also of Omaha, was arrested.

J. Wilson Schies, the filling station attendant, who killed Lande, had been robbed ten times before, so had rigged up an electric system that set off a bell in his home, 25 yards away, whenever a door or a window of the station was pried open. The bell rang early yesterday. Schies saw a man in the station and fired.

MEDITATIONS —OF A— MARRIED WOMAN By HELEN ROWLAND

Men I Should Not Care to Marry.
AM not a suspicious woman. Oh, not in the least!
And yet—I should not care to be married to a good-looking man and to be aware that all his waking hours were spent in ministering to other women, ministering to their ills, lending a sympathetic ear to their sufferings, listening to their heart-beats and taking their pulses.
A doctor's life is full of temptations!
And I'd hate to be married to a dentist, whose entire day was spent in bending over the upturned pleading eyes of suffering ladies, plugging with scented hair, and in assuring them that "it won't hurt a bit."
Dentists are SO gentle—and sympathetic.
And I should not relish being married to a lawyer, who has to spend hours and hours with tearful feminine clients, comforting the widows and solacing the divorcee and giving them legal advice and all that.
Lawyers are so strong—and understanding.
Nor to a shoemaker, sitting at the feet of other women all day, telling them what wonderful insteps and slender ankles they are, and flatter them into buying shoes that hurt them.
Nor to a photographer, nor to a young and popular clergyman—above all, to an ACTOR!
I have not a jealous bone in my body—nor in my head!
But, I think I could be fairly happy and contented with a banker, whose days are spent behind an iron-barred window, and who has a natural contempt for women who sign checks upside down and overdraw their accounts.
Or with a hotel clerk—who just automatically HATES all women!
Or with an editor, to whom women are only annoying "little intrusions" and bitter dispensations, and who protects himself from them with a legion of office-boys and a glacial manner.
Or with a nice safe burglar, who was in jail for a long, long time—and never saw a woman!
Oh, no, I am not a jealous woman—positively not!
I am just a woman—the "weaker vessel," filled with doubt!
That's all!

Children's Bedtime Story By Thornton W. Burgess

Johnny Is Greatly Peeved

Some folks by nothing are aggrieved,
And finish by becoming peeved.
—Old Mother Nature.

I f ever there was an astonished upset Woodchuck, that Chuck was Johnny Chuck. He stared at the empty doorway of his home and there was a funny look on his face. Even now he couldn't believe that he had heard correctly. No, sir, he couldn't believe it. Instead of being welcomed by Polly Chuck, he had been told to go away and stay away.
"Well, in all my born days, I never heard anything like that," muttered Johnny. "Is Polly crazy? She didn't even ask where I had been, or what happened to me. She treated me just as if I was of no account at all."
A sudden thought popped into Johnny's head. "Could it be that while he had been away a strange Chuck had wooed and won Polly? Could it be?" Jealousy promptly surged all through Johnny Chuck. He glared all about for signs of a strange Chuck, but he saw no signs of any. He even ran about looking for footprints of a strange Chuck, but there were none. This relieved him, but it didn't make him feel any better-natured. He still remained peeved—very much peeved. In fact, he grew more peeved with every passing minute. This was a nice way to be greeted after all the trouble he'd been through.

"I'll show her that she can't treat me this way," growled Johnny, and once more started to enter the house.
But that is all he did do—just start. There came from down below such a snapping of teeth and such an ugly warning that Johnny backed out hastily. It was clear that Polly Chuck meant just what she said. "It was clear to him that he was no longer welcome in his own home."
"Well, what do you know about this?" grumbled Johnny. "There must be something wrong with Polly. She not only appears not to have missed me, but actually seems to think I have no business here. It is my house just as much as hers. I'll show her! Yes, sir, I'll show her! I can't do anything with her down in there now, but if she once comes out I'll show her whose house this is." Johnny was getting angrier and angrier. And with it all he was very much at a loss, for he didn't know how to account for it. When he had last seen Polly Chuck, the day he was caught in a box trap and taken away by Farmer Brown's Boy, she had been good-natured enough. What had happened to make this change? Johnny didn't know. He didn't have the least idea.
Finally Johnny went over to the nearest sweet clover patch to soothe his temper with some sweet clover. While he was eating the Merry Little Breezes of Old Mother West Wind came dancing along. "Why, Johnny Chuck," they cried, "what are you doing here? We thought you were over in the Old Pasture. Didn't you like the Old Pasture?"

"No," granted Johnny, and he was so cross about it that the Merry Little Breezes noticed it.
"My, my, my!" said one of them. "It doesn't do you any good to come home, does it? Is that the way you talk to Polly Chuck?"
Johnny said nothing, but he snapped his teeth and looked sulky and out of sorts. The Merry Little Breezes began to tease him. They ruffled his hair and they pulled his whiskers. It only made Johnny more peeved than ever.

comfort as we fare along to still each fear and doubt. Not often do we find a friend who meets each need with love, who gives us, till the journey's end, a trust no test can move. But, ah! what bliss invests the days from one rare glimpse of light! One kindness brightens lonely ways, one friend lends life delight! One thought of love can bring in train a thousand happy dreams, and he who enters dream's domain forgets the world's harsh schemes. And so these glimpses come to lend new speed to climbing feet; a perfect day, a smile, a friend, and life grows strangely sweet!

keeps drainpipes CLEAR
You can easily prevent unpleasant, and sometimes costly, stoppages of the kitchen sink by cleaning the drainpipes with CLOROX, two or three times a week. This effective method calls for little effort; pour a kettleful of boiling water slowly into the sink and down the pipes, followed immediately by a cupful of CLOROX. After a few minutes, flush a gallon of hot water through the pipes. Your kitchen plumbing will be clear, disinfected and free from odor. CLOROX is also an excellent disinfectant for wash basins or toilet bowls. Buy a bottle of CLOROX from your grocer and prove its merits for yourself.

Marshak's makes children drink milk willingly
The Club met at Jimmy's
The club met at Jimmy's and Jimmy's mother, who has raised a large family of boys and knows all about healthy young appetites, served cream cheese sandwiches, hot Marshak's and gingerbread. It was a good thing she provided plenty, especially of the Marshak's for, oh, how good it was!
MARSHAK'S
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
CHOCOLATE FLAVOR MALTMOLAK
A teaspoonful to a glass of milk, hot or cold, according to the weather, makes a delicious chocolate milk shake which everybody enjoys and which is wholesome and nourishing for children. Doctors order it to tempt sluggish appetites. It makes children drink milk willingly. Marshak's keeps fresh and good indefinitely even after the can is opened. It should be on every pantry shelf for the worker returning tired and late, for the child who just can't wait till dinner time, for the invalid whose appetite must be tempted with a light but carefully selected meal. Ask your grocer for Marshak's.

The Man on the Sandbox

by L. Davis

TRIS SPEAKER.
THERE was an old fellow named Tris Speaker. Who the pitchers declared seldom missed 'em; He would get on their nerves When he hammered their curves. No matter what way they would twist 'em.

He was likewise a shark as a fielder,
As well as a great willow wielder;
Although youth will be served It was never observed,
That to youth he was much of a yielder.

TOO TRUE.
Of the two greatest outfielders remaining in the game, Tris Speaker is gray-headed and Ty Cobb is bald-headed. Indicating that hair doesn't mean a thing in the major leagues.

As the feller says, a ball player is no older than his legs and there are only a few of the old guard left.

When Babe Ruth comes to town the right field customers had bet.

ter get behind the screen when the Bambino starts playing the nose hazard.
The fact that one fan got his nose in the Cardinal feed-bag may inspire others to take a chance at the law of averages and the law of compensation.

"Board Rejects $5,000,000 Bid on Five Dollar Liners."

When they sell five-dollar liners for $5,000,000 it has all the earmarks of excess profits.

It happens in this case, however, that Dollar is the name of the owner of the liners, proving that things are not always what they seem.

See where gooseberries are in the market. What ho, for a nice dish of gooseberries and cream!

A U. S. agent advises that no more berry pickers are needed in the strawberry district. Indicating that business is not picking up.

But the job we used to be stuck on when a boy was picking blackberries.

"Bride-to-Be Is 7 Feet 11; Prospective Groom a Bit Taller."

There's a couple that ought to get a long all right.
